THE FIREMEN

Hold the Key to the Situation in Buffalo.

They Have the Power to Tie Up All the Roads.

The Blockade Being Broken in the Yards.

Some Action May Be Taken in a Few Hours.

Grand Master Sargent is Now on the Scene and His Actions Are Being Closely Watched.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Grand Master Sargent, of the Locomotive Firemen's Brotherhood, arrived in Buffalo at 6 o'clock this morning.

This is the latest feature in the strike situation.

Past Grand Chief Telegrapher Thurston, of Vinton, arrived here Saturday night.

Now the heads of all the railroad organizations, with the exception of the engineers, are or have been on the scene and in a position to intelligently discuss the situation.

The firemen are masters of the situation to-day and it is for Grand Master Sargent to say whether the present strike shall collapse or spread to proportions involving immeasurable loss, not only to participants in the struggle, but to the commerce and business of the country.

Mr. Sargert was a very tired man as he stepped from his car this morning. To a reporter who asked him for an interview he begged to be excused at that time, but promised one later in the day.

Grand Chief Telegrapher Thurston had several long conferences while here. He departed for Albany yesterday. The object of his visit was, as nearly as can be learned, to ascertain the situation in this city and consult with the members of his order regarding the pending trouble with the D., L. & W. railway.

The difficulty which is understood to be the question of wages, has been referred to General Manager Halsted for approval. Thurston's visit here was official, and he was empowered to act.

He will be in Scranton, Pa., to-morrow when a conference will be held with reference to the Lackawanna matter and Mr. Halsted will probably be asked for his ultimatum.

The troops are becoming accustomed to the privations of war time and are not grumbling so much over little matters. The commissarial has improved and this doubtless has its effect on the spirits of the men.

The 47th separate company, of Hornellsville, arrived here last night and was assigned to guard the Nickel Plate and Erie crossings at Seneca street.

Company H of the Seventy-fourth regiment is indignant at the treatment which they say Private Jackson received yesterday at the hands of Gen. McGrath.

According to the men's story this officer visited the various camps in the morning, and on the train back to headquarters sent an orderly to have Jackson vacate for him a seat in the car which Jackson was occupying and which was in front of the general.

The orderly, who was in the uniform of a private, without stating his authority, ordered Jackson to "get out of that seat."

Jackson replied: "I won't do it. You are not an officer and I am as much entitled to this seat as you are."

Thereupon, it is said, Gen. McGrath leaned forward, seized Jackson, and, after handling pretty roughly, landed him in the aisle. Jackson was then placed under arrest and is now in the guard house. Jackson's comrades think he has been subjected to unjust treatment. It is said that affidavits are being taken to prove the facts as stated here for future use.

There's a wide difference between the help that's talked of and the help that's guaranteed.

Which do you want, when you are buying medicine?

If you're satisfied with words, you get them with every blood-purifier but one. That one is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. With that, you get a guarantee. If it doesn't help you, you have your money back. On this plan, a medicine that promises help is pretty sure to give it.

But it's because the medicine is different, that it's sold differently. It's not like the sarsaparillas, which are said to be good for the blood in March, April, and May. At all seasons and in all cases, it cures permanently, as nothing else can, all the diseases arising from a torpid liver or from impure blood.

It's the best blood-purifier, and it's the cheapest, no matter how many doses are offered for a dollar.

With this, you pay only for the good you get. Can you ask more?

GRAND MASTER SARGENT.

If the Firemen Go Out All Trainmen Will Follow.

Buffalo, Aug. 22.—Grand Master Sargent went from the depot to the Broezel house. When he had breakfasted he was assigned to room 18. When he had rested he consented to talk to a reporter. His words seem to strengthen the belief that the trouble here is not over yet. Said he:

"I came here in response to telegrams from Mr. Sweeney. You ask me what the outlook is; I cannot tell you yet. I am here sooner than was expected, for I was quite ill and did not at first think I should be able to leave my bed. But I made up my mind that it was highly necessary for me to come and I started yesterday morning."

"But, Mr. Sargent, are the firemen going out. That is the question that interests Buffalonians above all others.

"That I cannot tell. But let me assure you that if the firemen go out, the engineers, trainmen, conductors and railroad telegraphers will go with them."

He became deeply interested and continued: "That I know. Mind you, now, I do not say that the firemen will go out, but I want you to emphasize that fact—that if the firemen go out the conductors, trainmen, engineers and telegraphers will go with them. The public have a wrong impression in this matter and the papers have been misleading them. The papers have been talking of the firemen as if they were going out as a separate body. That it not so. They will not go out alone.."

"What is the specific grievance of the firemen in this city?"

"They have none that I know of. But it is now a question as to whether the railroad corporations or the different bodies of organized labor are to succeed. Suppose that the switchmen are defeated in this struggle, what then? In the future whenever the firemen, engineers or any other order of railroad employes go to their corporations with requests or grievances they will simply be ignored. It will be a sympathetic strike altogether—a struggle between the railroad corporations and organized labor. If the switchmen are defeated at this time it is a serious blow to organized labor. If they are supported and maintained by their brother organizations, and carry their point, it will tend to give the organizations their rights in the future. As you might say it is purely a struggle for self-preservation."

"Can the local organization of firemen go out on their own responsibility?"

"No. Any local organization is liable to expulsion from the order for striking without a two-thirds vote and the consent of certain executives of the organization."

"How many firemen are there in the immediate vicinity of Buffalo, on the roads centering in Buffalo?"

"I should say Buffalo could produce in the neighborhood of 1,200.

"In the case of the firemen going out do you think the roads could get enough men to operate the lines?"

"No, I do not. Business is good and the country is not overstocked with skilled railroad men out of jobs."

"How soon will it be determined what action will be taken?"

"That I cannot tell. Mr. Sweeney has sent for executives of the various orders of railroad employes, and after a conference has been held it will be known. But let me assure you that before the firemen go out certain railroad officials will know it and probably the public as well. Our order is well organized and we do business in a business-like manner."

"Do you know anything about a three-years' contract that the Central has with its men?"

"Nothing."

"Do you consider that it was necessary to bring so many troops here?"

"Positively not. It seems to me there might have been found a sufficient number of brave men in Buffalo to act as deputies without calling out the uniformed troops. That is the way it looks to an Indiana man. I do not believe that these acts of lawlessness and violence have been committed by switchmen. So far as I know them they are men of common sense and honor and would do nothing of this sort. But in this as in all other strikes I have ever known about, there are a gang of disreputable curs and bums hanging about who commit these depredations and the railroad men are blamed for it."

He spoke of Grand Master Sweeney in the highest terms, but as he had not yet seen him he was unable to say when the important conference would be held.

TRAIN WRECKERS.

All Efforts to Run Them Down Has Proved Futile.

Buffalo, Aug. 22.—So far all efforts to capture the train wreckers who tried to throw Erie express train, No. 1, from the track, eight miles east of Alden, Saturday night, and partly succeeded, have proven fruitless. Supt. Brunn has been investigating the case, and to a United Press reporter early this morning he said: "It was a dastardly piece of work and I am sure it was the work of the strikers.

"Four attempts were made to wreck our trains last week and the last one Saturday night, almost succeeded in throwing one of the fastest trains on our line over an embankment. The train was running fifty miles an hour and to have derailed it meant a terrible loss of life. Fortunately Engineer Wyman had presence of mind enough when he found his engine off the rails to apply the air brakes and thereby prevented the coaches from being overturned. It is a miracle that no lives were lost."

SYMPATHY NOT IN IT.

Jersey City Men Will Deliberate Before Striking.

Jersey City, N. J., Aug. 22.—Switchmen's union No. 65, most of whose members work in the Lehigh Valley yards, at a secret meeting yesterday afternoon discussed the strike and decided not to go out on a sympathetic strike, except under written orders from Buffalo, and only then after a meeting and discussion of the advisability of complying.

Switchmen's lodge No. 115, most of whose men are in the Erie yards, also held a meeting at which a like conclusion was reached.

SWEENEY AND SARGENT

The Two Leaders Have a Very Important Conference.

Buffalo, Aug. 22.—Grand Master Sweeney called upon Mr. Sargent at the Broezel and for an hour both men had a conference. At its close Mr. Sargent said to a reporter that he was satisfied with what Mr. Sweeney had done and reiterated his confidence in him.

"Do you think a conference will be held to-day?" asked the reporter.

"No," he replied. "Grand Master Clark, of the conductors, Wilkinson, of the trainmen, and Chief Arthur, of the engineers, have been invited here and I am assured that they will come. Clark has to come from Cedar Rapids, Ia., and he cannot get here until to-morrow. No formal conference will be held until all get here. This I promise you."

"Mr. Webb," said the reporter, "expresses the conviction that there will be no general strike."

"That's Mr. Webb's conviction," said Mr. Sargent, "but we may think different after the circumstances are carefully considered. You may rest assured that Mr. Webb has no knowledge of our movements."

"Don't you think the firemen will have a grievance if the new ten-hour law of the state is not faithfully observed by the railroads?"

"Yes, if the law is being violated by the companies they should be compelled to obey it. Our men do not want to violate the law and surely the companies should not be allowed to. I am in favor of upholding the law and in so doing will undoubtedly win the sympathy and confidence of the people. That law is on the statute books of the state and it should be obeyed."

"Mr. Sargent, what do you think of the proposition made by Sheriff Beck that the men who are now doing the switching in place of the strikers be made deputy sheriffs?"

"It's a novel and unique idea, to say the least. But my idea is if the railroads want protection they had better have the strikers sworn in as sheriff's deputies, for they would be more solicitous in regard to the protection of the property of the railroads than the irresponsible men who are now manning the switches."

SUPERINTENDENT WEBB.

He Does Not Think There Will be a General Strike.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Vice-President Webb was informed this morning of Grand Master Sargent's arrival and his explicit statement that should the firemen strike the engineers, trainmen and all organized branches of the employes on the road would follow.

"I don't think it possible that a general strike will take place," said Mr. Webb, "and that is a question which is not worth discussing. I can't see that these kindred organizations have any grievance, at least not on our road. No, I do not think it even probable that they will strike."

"Would you meet the issue in the same way if it came as in the case of the switchmen?"

"There can be no answer to that question because I do not believe a general strike will take place. All I can say now is that we are moving our freights regularly under protection."

"How long do you think it will be necessary for the troops to remain here?"

"As long as it will be necessary to properly protect our property. Do I think some of them could go home now? No, I do not. Candidly their services are needed here and should remain for some time yet. This is admitted upon all sides."

The railroads are making still better progress in moving freight to-day and things look very discouraging to the strikers. In the opinion of the best informed people the switchmen's strike is a failure, and it is only a question of time when the roads will be running as before, unless some new complication arises.

TO RECEIVE FREIGHT.

The Reading is Ready to Do Business of All Kinds.

New York, Aug. 22.—A dispatch was received this morning by General Eastern Freight Agent Klase, of the Reading, from B. H. Bail, the general freight agent at Philadelphia, directing him hereafter to receive freight of any description for all points. Mr. Klase said the Reading was now handling its freight without any difficulty. Orders to receive all freight have been issued from the Lake Erie headquarters. At their office it was said this morning that the strike at Buffalo was to them a thing of the past and they anticipated no more difficulty.

GOVERNOR FLOWER.

He Tells Why He Sent So Many Troops to Buffalo.

Watertown, N. Y., Aug. 22.—In an interview with a United Press reporter previous to his departure, Gov. Flower said in reference to the criticisms that have been made on his action in sending so many troops to the scene of the strike: "Have you a brother among the militia at Bualo? If you have you well know how to answer the criticisms.

"The militia of the state of New York is composed of active, intelligent young men coming from prosperous homes, shops, and business places. They devote energy and relinquish a measure of their liberty in the service of the state in preparations for just such emergencies as the present one.

"When the state calls them for service that has an element of danger in it, the state is bound to use every means at its command to minimize the dangers as far as possible.

"Certainly it would be an outrage to place one of these young men in a perilous position so long as it is possible to avoid it. When the proper authorities of Buffalo informed me that the 2,000 militiamen of the locality were trying to protect a territory so vast that it was necessary to place every man in constant danger, and when they asked for more troops to lessen this danger to life, as well as to protect the property, the state could do no less than to send enough troops to prevent all possibility of a riot and bloodshed.

"It was due to the strikers as well as to the militia and the owners of the property involved, that we gave ample protection to all, for the strikers are not the ines from whomserious trouble is feared. That comes from the lawless element, the hangers-on who invariably gather at such places and find pleasure and profit in stirring up strife and causing wreck and ruin. In a city like Buffalo this element numbers many thousands.

"I am sure the good people of the state will find no fault because their chief executive has granted the request for sufficient troops to prevent this law-breaking crowd from committing any act that might lead to furthertr ouble."

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

Kansas City Filled With Her Invited Guests.

Much Work for the Supreme Council.

The First Day Devoted to Receptions and Locating the Incoming Thousands.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 22.—The Knights of Pythias have taken this city by storm, and the streets, hotels, boarding houses and the tents at the camp are alike crowded with members of the order.

Delegations from every part of the country, as well as from Canada, are pouring in on every train, and the influx of strangers has greatly exceeded all original estimates.

As fast as they arrive the brigades immediately go to Camp Shaw.

To-day is reception day for the Uniform Rank and also Knights of Pythias day at Troost park, where special features in the entertainment line have been provided.

The sessions of the supreme council, which is the supreme legislature of the Knights of Pythias of the world, commenced to-day and will continue for two weeks.

The council consists of two members of the order from every state and territory. Considerable legislation of the greatest importance to the order is to be considered.

General Carnahan has issued the following general order pertaining to the government of Camp George B. Shaw:

PIRATES ON THE COAST.

They Robbed the Vanderbilt Cottage.

A Mysterious Black Yacht Joined the Squadron Evidently for a Purpose.

Boston, Aug. 22.—George W. Vanderbilt's cottage at Bar Harbor was robbed of $20,000 worth of jewelry and silver plate at the time of the raid by burglars a few weeks ago. On the night of the robbery the Eastern Yacht club was at anchor at Bar Harbor, and a gala time was in progress. Among the vessels was a black schooner yacht which was apparently a part of the squadron, as it obeyed all the squadron signals and conducted itself in other ways as a part of the fleet. She was at anchor when the sun went down, but next morning she had departed—no one knew where. Then it was learned that Vanderbilt's summer residence had been burglarized during the night.

When the occupants of the cottage awoke in the morning it was found that a great part of their silver had been taken, together with about $500 in greenbacks, and, most valuable of all, seven breastpins. Six of these were presents of members of the family to Mrs. Vanderbilt. Some tracks were found leading to and from a rear window, through which an entrance had evidently been effected. These tracks seemed to lead right down to the shore.

That the robbers had gone off by water was the conclusions formed at once, and when a black schooner yacht was spoken of an inquiry was started. All the information that the police could obtain was that she was a yacht of schooner build, painted black; that she was rather wide at the stern, and that two or three men had been on her. No one had seen her depart and none of the incoming vessels had passed her.

The case was given to the Pinkertons to work up and they have set a watch for the black yacht, which may have turned white into a catgoat rig since. They have sent out a circular to all the police departments of the country describing the stolen property.

BUD LINDSAY CAPTURED.

He Was Taken From the Soldiers' Lines.

After a Promise to Turn States' Evidence the Rope Was Taken from His Neck.

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 22.—A sensational episode occurred last night at Coal Creek. The leader of the most daring, most lawless and most troublesome body of miners was Bud Lindsay, and to his machinations, has been due much of the turbulence on the creek.

He has made himself so obnoxious to the more conservative miners and to citizens not in sympathy with the rioting, that he has been a marked figure and only his keeping within safe distance of the military since his capture and generally between four walls, has prevented his being killed.

For several nights he was confined in an old mine and the mouth guarded by a large squad of soldiers. Affairs during the day had been so quiet, the submission of the miners so general, that watch was somewhat relaxed and Lindsay had lost some of his fear and wandered more widely within the enclosure.

Last night in some way four citizens managed to seize and silence him and in the dusk slipped him between the pickets. He was hurried up the valley towards Briceville, and the mob, which gained force almost at every step, hurried him forward, fearing alarm, and pursuit by soldiers. The journey was not ended until Briceville, the scene of the labor trouble last year, and the home of the more conservative class of miners, was reached.

Once there, a rope was secured and placed around his neck. His true character was soon seen. Although considered a desperate man, and although he has at least a dozen murders to his account, he broke down and begged for his life with all possible ferver.

His pleadings and lamentations were effective. He was promised life upon the solemn promise that to-morrow he will turn state's evidence and reveal the names and plans of all the leaders, tell how the mob was raised, the nature of the oath, the names of miners known to have killed soldiers or guards, in short, to reveal to civil authorities all of the lawlessness that has reigned and this he agreed to testify to in court.

When all this was promised the rope was taken from his neck and he was returned to the camp for safe keeping. It is now believed that with his testimony 20 or 30 leaders can be successfully tried for murder and convicted.

OCEAN MARINE.

New York, Aug. 22.—Arrived—Spain from London; Marengo from Hull.

CHILE AND PERU.

They May Come Together in Warfare.

Alliances Made Which Are Certain to Cause Trouble At No Late Day.

New York, Aug. 22.—A special cablegram to the Herald from its Valparaiso correspondent says there is a possibility of trouble between Peru and Chili arising from the protocol between France and Chile. The offensive tone of the Peruvian press and the hostile talk in the Peruvian congress have caused much comment here.

If it is true, as it is freely rumored, that a secret treaty against Chile has been entered into between Argentina and Peru, this country, while not seeking trouble, will not allow insult and is ready to meet them.

Foreign Minister Errazuriz has telegraphed to the Chilean minister to Peru to state the terms of the offensive protocol to the government of that country and assure it that nothing is intended in the document to reflect in any way on the dignity and sovereignity of Peru.

The council of state at Santiago has approved the agreement for a commission to arbitrate the claims of the citizens of the United States against Chile, the terms of which have been previously cabled.

ENGLISH TITLES.

Victoria is Throwing Them Around to Her Friends.

Sir Lyon Playfair Becomes a Peer and Another Liberal Seat is Made Vacant.

London, Aug. 22.—A peerage has been conferred on the Right Hon. Sir Lyon Playfair, M. P. for South Leeds. Sir Lyon is 71 years of age, is one of the most learned men in England. He is a Scotchman, born in India, where his father was inspector general of hospitals.

The elevation of Sir Lyon to peerage will leave the seat for South Leeds vacant. As Sir Lyon had a majority of 1,535 the seat seems to be safe for the Liberals.

A peerage has been conferred on Mr. Cyril Flower, M. P., for South Bedfordshire. Mr. Flower is one of the handsomest and wealthiest men in the house of commons. He is 49 years of age, is married to a daughter of the house of Rothschild and owns much property in South London. He has been called to the bar, but belongs to a firm of merchants.

A baronetcy has been conferred on the Right Hon. George Osborne Morgan, liberal M. P. for East Denbighshire. Sir George was born in 1827, and is the son of a Welsh clergyman. He was highly successful at college and was elected M. P. for Denbighshire in 1878.

He was judge advocate general under Mr. Gladstone in 1880, and in 1886 he was under secretary for the colonies.

A baronetcy has also been conferred on Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British minister at Washington, who is already a G. C. M. G., a K. C. B. and a K. C. M. G. Sir Julian was born in 1828 and was called to the bar in 1852. He has been attorney general and chief justice at Hong Kong, chief justice of the Leeward islands and has held other offices calculated to qualify him for Washington.

MYSTERIOUS FIRES.

Four Attempts to Burn a Building.

The Last One Almost Successful and Several Persons Injured.

New York, Aug. 22.—Three persons were burned and bruised and narrowly escaped death in an incendiary fire which occurred shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday morning in the fashionable apartment house, 301 Henry street, Brooklyn. Nine other persons escaped from the burning building in their night clothes.

The injured, who were all taken to the Long Island college hospital, are:

Charles E. Fuller, 42 years of age, a broker, jumped from the second floor; injured internally.

Elizabeth D. Holt, aged 23, and Rosabelle Holt, aged 26. These two sisters slid down a rope from the fourth story, and were severely lacerated about the hands and limbs, besides being burned about the head.

Three attempts to destroy the house have been made within a week, and a fourth attempt was made a few months ago. All of the fires prior to yesterday's were discovered soon after they were started and extinguished with slight loss. Yesterday's, however, had gained such headway before being discovered that it caused a damage of $15,000 before being extinguished.

The police are endeavoring to solve the mystery.

THE BORDEN TRIAL.

Lizzie to Have a Judicial Investigation.

Bridget Sullivan's Testimony to Cut Quite a Figure is Not Shaken.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 22.—The judicial investigation into the Borden murder mystery opened this afternoon in the court house.

Public interest in the affair has been intensified as a result of the statements of Bridget Sullivan, to the effect that she saw Lizzie Borden in the cellar on he morning of the murder, and that she afterwards saw the hatchet which was usually kept in the cellar in the sitting room, where the double murder was committed.

Miss Borden's interests will be watched by Andrew Jennings, the prominent lawyer.

The feeling in favor of the prisoner's innocence is still strong, especially among the church element, and the Women's Christian Temperance Union, of which she has been an active member. The inquest will be resumed to-morrow.

"Will they never stop?" remarked the rotund individual who was selling tickets yesterday at the marine dock.

"I sometimes feel like Poe's raven, my voice has lost its old tone, is nothing more than a miserable croak now. Well, come on, who wants another of these tickets. Four? Well, well, four more persons made happy, and four more Bee coupons go into the box."

It was a remarkable throng of persons lined up before the ticket office. There were hundreds of men and women, carrying lunch baskets, canes and umbrellas, the heads of happy families, with troops of merry, laughing children, and bevies of pretty young girls, and every one had a Bee coupon and ten cents in hand.

With a skill only acquired by long practice the ticket seller received the coins and the tickets, and long before the time for the magnificent steamer W. R. Burt to leave the dock every seat upon her decks was occupied.

The cry of "All aboard," a shrill whistle, and the boat was on its way up the river to Marengo Park, Orchard Grove, Eden Park and Perrysburg.

From early morn until evening the boat made the runs and each trip she was crowded.

It was an ideal day for an outing. The band played choice selections, the quartet especially engaged for the day sang the old melodies, the people were happy and Marengo Park and the other up-river resorts were crowded.

Perrysburg people also availed themselves of the Bee's generosity; put 10 cents with the coupon and enjoyed the day.

What yesterday was can be every day. The coupons are printed in each issue of the Bee. Cut one out and take a ride to-morrow.

MARRIED IN HASTE.

Two Show People Block the Dissenting Mother.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 22.—At the Spencer house late Saturday night, the Rev. Joseph D. Carey, rector of the Bethesda Episcopal church, joined in matrimony two of the attaches of Forepaugh's show. They were Miss Louisa Adele Nilsson, a trapeze performer, and William Herbert Wilson, one of the superintendents of the show. The wedding was not to have taken place until the show reached Schenectady, but Miss Nilsson accidentally learned that her mother had, in respone to a cablegram from a member of the family, reached New York from Europe Saturday and intended to prevent the marriage. In order to prevent any possible scene the ceremony was performed here.

WORKED TO DEATH.

Brutal Treatment to the German Soldiers.

Made to March in the Boiling Sun Until 200 Drop From the Heat.

Vienna, Aug. 22.—Emperor Francis Joseph has countermanded the orders for the holding of the military manoeuvers which were fixed for August 29, owing to the intense heat.

The action of the emperor was due to the reports received from Carniola, where manoeuvers have been held notwithstanding the extremely hot weather. The soldiers were in heavy marching order and were compelled to take the field in the broiling sun and march and countermarch, charge and recharge with all their accoutrements. The result was about 200 of them were sunstruck. Eleven men out of the 200 died. There is a feeling of indignation that the military authorities should have forced the men to manoeuvers in such weather.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

Female Aeronaut Falls Three Hundred Feet —Not a Bone Broken.

Columbus, O., Aug. 22.—Nellie Steele, a well-known female balloonist, narrowly escaped instant and horrible death Sunday. She made an ascent at a picnic on the Columbus Shooting Club grounds, and having reached a height of 300 or 400 feet attempted to descend by means of a parachute. The ropes would not work, and in her effort to cut the parachute loose the balloon overturned and burst. Miss Steele fell with frightful rapidity, and in her descent struck the roof of a building. The most remarkable feature is that no bones were broken, and Police Surgeon Schultz says she may live.

SHOT BY A BURGLAR.

A Neighbor When Charged With the Crime Becomes Ill.

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 22.—At about 11:30 o'clock Saturday night, D. L. Samples, a prominent merchant of Elk City, a suburb of this city, was fatally shot by a masked burglar who had entered his store and grabbed his money while he was counting it. Philip C. Russell, a neighbor, is charged with the crime. He has not yet been arrested, as he is lying in a dangerous condition, the result of the prostration on being acquainted with the charge made against him.

WANTED TO DIE.

Columbus, Aug. 22.—Samuel Null, a tinner, married, but without family, attempted to commit suicide. He has been disheartened for a week or more, and his wife had been notified by their landlady to vacate the rooms they had been occupying. Null and his wife had some words, and he told her he would take his life. No sooner had he made the threat than he plunged the blade of a pocketknife into his neck, making an ugly gash three inches long. The wound was sewed up at the city prison, and Null will probably recover.

DROWNED IN A POND.

Findlay, O., Aug. 22.—Harry, the 19-year-old son of C. S. Stockton, went to an abandoned stone quarry in this city last night to take a swim. He was not missed from home until inquiries were made by the police, who found his clothes on the bank of the pond. It took two hours to recover the body. He is supposed to have been seized with cramps.

IRISH FUNDS.

London, Aug. 22.—The Most Rev. James V. Cleary, archbishop of Kingston, Ont., has sent 400 pounds to the McCarthyits. In a letter accompanying the subscription the archbishop writes that his people, who are chiefly Irish, are eagerly looking forward to the time when they can send delegates to Dublin to take part in inaugurating an Irish parliament. He adds that he and others will be most happy to assist in this inauguration.

LOCK OUT.

London, Aug. 22.—The dispute between the journeymen tailors in England and the masters regarding the matter of piece work, resulted to-day in the employers locking out their men as a matter of protection. Fifty-five thousand tailors are made idle by this action.

THE PRESIDENT ACTS.

Retaliatory Proclamation Against the Canadians.

Twenty Cents a Ton to Pass the Soo Locks.

The Final Act and the Events Which Lead Up to It—Interesting Reading.

Washington, Aug. 22.—The president Saturday afternoon issued a proclamation imposing retaliatory tolls on Canadian vessels passing through American canals, under authority of the act passed at the last session of congress. Following is the text of the document:

Whereas, by an act of congress, approved July 26, 1892, entitled, "An act to enforce reciprocal commercial relations between the United States and Canada and for other purposes," it is provided "that, with a view of securing reciprocal advantages for the citizens, ports and vessels of the United States, on and after the first day of August, 1892, whenever and so often as the president shall be satisfied that the passage through any canal or lock connected with the navigation of the St. Lawrence river, the great lakes, or the waterways connecting the same, or any vessels of the United States, or of cargoes or passengers in transit to any port of the United States, is prohibited, or is made difficult or burdensome, by the imposition of tolls or otherwise, which, in view of the free passage through the St. Mary's Fall's canal, now permitted to vessels of all nations, he shall deem to be reciprocally unjust and unreasonable, he shall have the power, and it shall be his duty, to suspend proclamation to that effect, for such time and to such extent (including absolute prohibition) as he shall deem just and right, free passage through the St. Mary's Fall's canal, so far as it relates to vessels owned by the subjects of the government so discriminating against the citizens, ports or vessels of the United States, or to any cargoes, portions of cargoes, or passengers in transit to the ports of the government making such discrimination, whether carried in vessels of the United States or other nations. In such case, and during such suspension, tolls shall be levied, collected and paid as follows, to wit:

"Upon freight of whatever kind or description, not to exceed $2 per ton; upon passengers, not to exceed $5 each, as shall be from time to time determined by the president. Provided that no tolls shall be charged or collected upon freight or passengers carried to and landed at Ogdensburg, or any port west of Ogdensburg, and south of a line drawn from the northern boundary of the state of New York through the St. Lawrence river, the great lakes and their connecting channels to the northern boundary of the state of Minnesota.

"Sec. 2. All tolls so charged shall be collected under such regulations as shall be prescribed by the secretary of the treasury, who may require the master of each vessel to furnish a sworn statement of the amount and kind of cargoes, the number of passengers carried, and the destination of the same and such proof of the actual delivery of such cargo or passengers at some port or place within the limits above named as he shall deem satisfactory; and until such proof is furnished such freight and passengers may be considered to have been landed at some port or place outside of those limits, and the amount of tolls which would have accrued if they had been so delivered shall constitute a lien, which may be enforced against the vessel in default wherever and whenever found in the waters of the United States."

Whereas, The government of the dominion of Canada imposes a toll amounting to about 20 cents per ton on all freight passing through the Welland canal in transit to a port of the United States and also a further toll on all vessels of the United States and on all passengers in transit to a port of the United States, all of which tolls are without rebate; and

Whereas, The government of the dominion of Canada, in accordance with an order in council of April 4, 1892, refunds 18 cents per ton of the 20 per cent. toll at the Welland canal on wheat, Indian corn, peas, barley, rye, oats, flax seed and buckwheat, upon condition that they are originally shipped for and carried to Montreal or some port east of Montreal for export, and that, if transhipped at an intermediate point, such transhipment is made within the dominion of Canada, but allows no such or any other rebate on said products when shipped to a port of the United States or when carried to Montreal for export if transhipped within the United States; and,

Whereas, The government of the dominion of Canada by said system of rebate and otherwise discriminates against the citizens of the United States in the use of said Welland canal in violation of the provisions of article 27 of the treaty of Washington, concluded May 8, 1871; and,

Whereas, Said Welland canal is connected with the navigation of the great lakes and I am satisfied that the passage through it of cargoes in transit to ports of the United States is made difficult and burdensome by said discriminating system of rebate and otherwise and is reciprocally unjust and unreasonable.

Now, therefore, I, Benjamin Harrison, President of the United States of America, by virtue of the power to that end conferred upon me by said act of congress approved July 26, 1892, do hereby direct that from and after September 1, 1892, until further notice, a toll of 20 cents per ton be levied, collected and paid on all freight of whatever kind or description passing through the St. Mary's Falls canal in transit to any port of the Dominion of Canada, whether carried in vessels of the United States or of other nations; and to that extent I do hereby suspend from and after said date the right of free passage through said St. Mary's Falls canal of any and all cargoes or portions of cargoes in transit to Canadian ports.

In testimony whereof, etc.,

BENJAMIN HARRISON.

By the president, John W. Foster, secretary of state.

The events leading up to the issue of the proclamation are described in the official memoranda as follows:

At an interview held at the department of state on Monday, August 1, the secretary of state informed Mr. Herbert, charge of the British legation, that in view of the passage of the act of congress relating to the Canadian tolls, the president would regard it his duty to issue, without delay, a proclamation based upon that act, imposing tolls upon products passing through the Ste. Marie canal destined for Canadian ports, unless an assurance could be received from the Canadian government, within a few days, that the discriminations now enforced in the Canadian canals against American ports and lines of transportation would be promptly discontinued.

Mr. Herbert answered that a few days' delay would be necessary in order to reassemble the Canadian cabinet, the majority of whom are now absent from the capital, and he inquired of the secretary what time would be considered reasonable for this purpose.

The secretary replied that he thought the cabinet might be conveniently called together and take action within a week or ten days, and that nothing would be done by the president in the matter within that time. Mr. Herbert said he would communicate immediately with the governor general by telegraph and urge prompt action.

On the 5th of August Mr. Herbert telegraphed Secretary Foster from Newport, R. I., that Lord Stanley had telegraphed him that it would be impossible to arrive at a decision till Monday at the earliest owing to the absence of all the ministers from Ottawa. The next day Mr. Herbert telegraphed Mr. Foster as follows:

"I have received assurance of further consideration. May I consequently venture to hope that no steps may be taken in the meantime?"

Secretary Foster replied by telegraph the same day as follows:

"Gratified at your telegram. You may count upon reasonable time, such as indicated in our interview."

Consul General Lay, at Ottawa, wrote to Assistant Secretary Wharton under date of August 15 as follows:

"I have the honor to confirm my telegram of to-day as follows: 'Ministers determined to abolish rebate on canal tolls at end of season.' The decision made by them as to the rebate on canal tolls, it seems, continues the rebate as now till the end of the season of navigation. I inclose copies of the orders in council authorizing these rebates, which would terminate at the end of the season without further action of council, so that the action taken in Montreal seems to leave the case in statu quo."

On the 18th inst. Secretary Foster telegraphed Mr. Herbert at Newport, as follows:

"When may I expect you here, or note on canal tolls?"

Mr. Herbert replied the same day as follows:

"Your telegram of to-day received. Have telegraphed to inquire what day I may expect communication."

On the 13th inst. Secretary Foster sent the following telegram to Mr. Herbert:

"The United States consul general at Ottawa reports decision of council was to abolish rebate at end of this season. This confirmed by Canadian press reports. If Canadian discriminations are to be continued during this season compliance with recent act of congress requires the president to establish tolls to run concurrently. Discussion as to future action can then proceed under parity of conditions."

In response to this telegram, Mr. Herbert the same day asked if he could see Secretary Foster at the state department early the following morning, and the secretary telegraphed back that he could see him at any time between 8 and 11 o'clock. In pursuance of this arrangement, Mr. Herbert, charge of the British legation, called on the secretary of state this morning and informed him that he had not yet received the official notice of the action of the Canadian cabinet on canal tolls, but he hoped to be able to communicate it early next week.

The secretary of state said that the United States consul general at Ottawa had reported that the decision of the cabinet was to abolish the rebate on tolls at the end of the present season, and that this had been confirmed by the ministerial press of Canada. He then asked Mr. Herbert if this conformed to his information on the subject.

Mr. Herbert answered that he was not as yet authorized to make any official communication on the subject, but that he had no doubt the consul general's report was correct.

The secretary of state then said that such a solution of the question would not be regarded as satisfactory to his government, and in answer to an inquiry he stated that the president considered it his duty to issue the proclamation contemplated by the act of congress. But he gave Mr. Herbert the assurance that, should the Canadian government give notice of its decision to abolish the discriminations now complained of, the proclamation would be suspended concurrently with such abolition.

HELD UP A TRAIN.

Western Farmers Are Learning the Tariff Act.

They Were Suspected, However, and the Sheriff Soon Had Them in Jail.

Wichita, Kan., Aug. 22.—The St. Louis and San Francisco railroad's passenger train which left here at 10:30 o'clock Saturday night was held up and the Wells Fargo express car robbed by four masked men near Augusta, Butler county, about midnight, and before 9 o'clock Sunday morning the outlaws were captured with a part of their booty.

As the train slowed up at the Santa Fe crossing about a mile east of Augusta, two masked men mounted the locomotive from either side, and covering the engineer and fireman with guns, ordered them to stop the train. The train came to a standstill, and two members of the robbers' gang, who were in hiding, started to uncouple the express car.

As soon as this was done the engineer was compelled to pull out with the car a mile distant from the train. While two of the highwaymen watched the locomotive crew the others went to the express car door and demanded admittance, and by way of emphasizing their demands, commenced shooting through the sides of the car in which were Express Messenger Shifft and a baggageman.

The imprisoned men soon gave in. The Wells-Fargo company has just taken hold of the Frisco lines, and their men have not yet received their arms; so the express messenger has nothing with which to protect the car but a small revolver. Shifft was forced to open the safe, and the robbers ransacked everything, getting between 15 and 20 packages of money. The whole thing was over in about thirty minutes and then the robbers left the locomotive, after firing a few shots. The outlaws did not attempt to rob the passengers, and the latter knew nothing of the robbery until all was over. The amount of money secured cannot be ascertained, but it probably did not exceed $8,000, as the train is made up at Burton, only 20 miles west of here.

The robbery was committed by four farmers living in the vicinity of Douglass, Butler county, and it seems was expected. Sheriff Nipp, of Cowley county, was informed that such a scheme was on foot by the fifth member of the gang early in the week, and while he could not discover when the robbery was to take place, he had a posse in waiting. As soon as he got wind of the hold-up he pounced on the outlaws. The robbers were new at holding up trains, but they did their work like professionals. The only mistake they made was holding up the wrong train, for had they robbed the westbound, instead of the eastbound train, they would have secured a large amount of boodle.

BIG RAILROAD CASE.

Henry Seibert Goes Before the Court.

He Wants the Affairs of St. Louis and Minneapolis Road Straightened Out.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 22.—One of the most important railway foreclosure suits ever instituted in the northwest is on the docket of the circuit court for peremptory and final trial to-day. It is the case of Henry Seibert against the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad.

Four years ago last June Seibert, as trustee, representing $3,000,000 of the improvement and equipment bonds of the railroad, instituted the foreclosure proceedings. Since that time the case has been almost weekly on the calendar of the district court, and has grown to mammoth proportions.

As an important case involving many questions in railway law it has grown famous.

The printed records up to date fill three volumes of 1,000 pages each. If it goes to the supreme court, as is likely, the record will be a small legal library in itself.

It will be bitterly fought by some of the ablest counsel in the country. The different interests will be represented by the following well-known legal lights: Henry Seibert, trustee; John M. Shaw, Minneapolis, Rock Island and Burlington roads; Thomas F. Withrow, receiver; W. H. Truesdale, Albert E. Clark; Farmers' Loan and Trust company; C. Truesdale, Minneapolis, and McClure, Turner and Ralston, New York; Central Trust company, of New York; Butler, Stillman & Hubbard, of New York, and Harris Richardson, St. Paul; Robert Benson and others by Lusk & Bunn, St. Paul; Fidelity Loan and Trust company, Woods & Tingman, Minneapolis.

The main fight will be between Henry Seibert as trustee and the Central Trust Co., the various interests being more or less identical with each other. Henry Seibert is a capitalist of New York city. His aim is to establish the mortgages which he holds as a first lien, and he also wants the other mortgages foreclosed.

LAWN TENNIS CHAMPIONS

They Are Meeting in the City of Newport.

Twelfth Annual Tournament Now in Session.

News of Turf, Diamond and Ring—Mention of General Interest.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 22.—The twelfth annual tournament of the United States National Lawn Tennis association opened here to-day, although the contests proper will not be inaugurated until to-morrow morning.

The site selected is the fine grass courts of the Casino. The annual struggle for supremacy over the tennis net attracts each season the most expert exponents of the game in this country, and it will require a week of continuous play to decide who shall hold the championship for the year, and carry off the massive silver challenge cup. What with the players and those interested in the game the tournament has attracted over 2,000 people.

Among the players are Henry W. Slocum, of Brooklyn; Quincey A. Shaw, of Boston; Oliver S. Campbell, of Brooklyn, present champion; E. P. Hubbard, of California; S. T. Chase, of Chicago; J. Tobin, of California; M. D. Smith, of Philadelphia; Edward L. Hall, of New York, champion of the south and of New England, and holder of the Tuxedo trophy; Malcolm G. Chase, of Providence, and several score others.

A grand stand affording accommodation for several thousand spectators has been erected, and Newport's society will turn out en masse every day this week to witness the sport.

New York, Aug. 22.—The athletic committee of the Manhattan Athletic club has given permission to Dominick McCaffery, the club's instructor, to accept the offer of James C. Corbett, to knock him out in four rounds. In view of the decision, Capt. Eugene Van Schaick, of the Maihattan Athletic club has sent this letter to Corbett at Asbury Park, N. J.:

"Dear Sir: I see in the papers that you are willing to box Dominick McCaffery at the Manhattan Athletic club, and will agree to stop him in four rounds.

"We will give $2,000 for such a contest, and McCaffery is willing to make a side bet of from $1,000 to $5,000.

"He has found a backer who has deposited with the athletic committee the sum of $1,000 as a forfeit and we would expect you to do the same. I would like to hear from you immediately and would be pleased to see your representative at hise arliest convenience. Match to take on date agreed upon."

The prospect of a bout between Corbett and McCaffery is greatly relished by the members of the Manhattan Athletic club and it was the topic of conversation there last night.

While the world at large accepts with passing wonderment the remarkable performance of Nancy Hanks and crowns her with one accord the Queen of the Turf, what must be the sensations of the veteran horseman who more than thirty years ago thought that Flora Temple had set a mark for all time? Though their idols, one after the other, through all these years have been cast into the background, these "turfites" must experience the keenest pleasure in the progress of the breeding of the trotting horse.

Before Flora Temple was the glory of the race track Tacoma held the world's record, with a mark of 2:25 1-2 made in 1853. Four times Flora Temple took seconds off this record until, in 1859, two years before Goldsmith Maid was foaled, the little mare, on the Kalamazoo track, made the circuit in 2:19 3-4. Horsemen were justified in their belief that the lowest notch had been reached, for eight years passed by before any fraction of time was clipped from Flora's record. But on July 30, 1867, Dexter robbed the mare of her supremacy by trotting the mile in 2:19, and strangely enough, Budd Doble, who to-day shares no small degree the glory of Nancy Hanks' record of 2:07 1-4, was behind him. Two weeks later at Buffalo Doble again sent Dexter for a record in 2:17 1-4. His star was in the ascendency for five years, and then, on June 9, 1872, Goldsmith Maid, driven by Doble, trotted the mile on our Mystic in 2:16 3-4.

This record was equaled by the gelding Occident, who, by the way, was the first trotter owned by Governor Stanford, at Sacramento on September 17, 1873. The maid shook off her rival the following year, Doble sending her the mile on the Mystic track in 2:14. She was then 17 years old, and for four years longer she reigned as the active Queen of the Turf. In August, 1878, Splan drove Rarus to a new record at Buffalo, beating the Maid's mark by three-quarters of a second, and then the world was startled by successive record breaking performances. At Oakland, Cal., on October 25, 1879, Hickok gave St. Julien a mark of 2:12 3-4. On August 12, 1880, St. Julien and Maud S. both circled the Rochester track in 2:11 3-4, and on August 27 St. Julien bettered his mark by half a second at Hartford. The year closed, however, with Maud S. to the fore with a record of 2:10 3-4, made at Chicago. The following year this greatest of racing horses lowered her record twice, making the mile at Pittsburg in 10 1-2 and at Cleveland in 2:10 1-4.

Maud S.'s sway was not disputed until August 1, 1884, when Bither sent Jay Eye See under the wire at Providence in 2:10. The latter's glory was short lived, for on the following day at Cleveland Maud S. was timed in 2:09 3-4. Later in the year she showed that she had not reached her limit by trotting against time in 2:09 1-4, and at Cleveland the following summer made the world's record (2:08 3-4) for a regulation track. This mark has been the goal of all trotters since that time until Nancy Hanks cast it into the shade. Sunol, Robert Bonner's great filly, surpassed it on a kite-shaped race at Oakland by trotting the mile in 2:08 1-4, and Palo Alto equaled Maud S.'s record on the same track.

There are two remarkable facts connected with the history of records from dexter to Nancy Hanks. One is that in almost every instance the successive champions have been sired by sons of Hambletonian. Dexter being sired by Hambletonian himself, and the other that their second dams were thoroughbred running horses.

In Nancy Hanks, Mr. J. Malcolm Forbes has an almost undefeated champion. Bonnie Wilmore alone having the credit of beating her in a heat. Her racing record is 2:12. Bostontakes a national pride in the fact that Nancy is owned by one of her citizens. Boston is now the home of four equine wonders, Nancy Hanks (2:07 1-4), Arion (2:10 3-4 as a 2-year old), Martha Wilkes (2:12) and Ralph Wilkes (2:18 as a 2-year old.

Billy Wilson, private secretary for V. H. Ketchum, takes great interest in the Sullivan-Corbett fight and thinks that Corbett will give the champion the hardest battle he has yet had. Mr. Wilson met Corbett first on the Pacific coast, and at that time he was a bank clerk, but left the bank to teach athletics in one of the famous clubs. Of Mr. Corbett's habits Mr. Wilson says they are of the best, and he laughs at the story of his dissipating, saying that Corbett is a man of splendid moral character and excellent physical development.

place at Vignaux's academy on August 4 and was one of the most exciting contests witnessed at the French capital for many years. In the first struggle between the four experts Schaefer carried off the honors, but the second attempt crowned Eugene Carter with the laurel wreath of fame. Schaefer made some good runs, but his play was not as consistent as that shown by Carter. The match was 300 points up, single cushion carroms, and Galignani's Messenger, in describing the struggle the day after its occurrence said: "Shortly after 9 o'clock Monsieur Delonge took his seat as judge and Eugene Carter, who won the string, broke the balls but failed to score. Then Garnier went in and knocked off five points, which number was equaled by Shaefer. Carter had some very bad luck in his first three innings, which was so many duck eggs, but on taking up the cue for the fourth time he ran off 11; then his partner, Shaefer, scored a splendid run of 49 in the twinkling of an eye, but never did much afterward, leaving Carter to do the scoring. The latter, who was in splendid form, made several breaks, his best being 11, 15, 28, 27, 24, 31, and 14, a remarkable show in a game of 300 up. Toward the end of the game the visitors pulled up a little, taking things easily, allowing the Frenchmen to run their scores to 248, when Carter stepped in and won the game by 52 points amid deafening cheers. The game was an excellent one and all the players showed good form, but Eugene Carter won the game from the beginning. The scores:

America—Carter 174, Shaefer 141; total 300.

France—Garnier 107, Piot 141; total 248; majority of America of 52 points.

New Orleans, Aug. 22.—The prize fighters training across the lake are all well. Dixon is quartered at a pleasant summer hotel and is enjoying the pleasant salt water bathing and the tramping around in the sand, which he says strengthens his legs. He was only half a dozen pounds over weight when he came down here and has trained down to 115 pounds. He will devote himself now to keeping strong. He expects a short fight, but is not to be taken by surprise, and is training for an all night affair. News from Bay St. Louis is conflicting. There are stories of drinking and neglect, but these the men indignantly deny. McAuliffe was never fond of work, and when he has to train is not pleasant about it, but he puts in a good deal of walking, ball punching and boxing with Nason and others, and he is right in line with the weight limit. He does most of his work in the latter part of the day, and does not make it a point to get up with the lark, saying that late work is good for a man who is to fight at night, while sleep and plenty of it is good for anybody. He says that a great deal depends upon his winning this fight and he knows it so well that he does not intend to make any mistakes, and he will be better fit than at any time in his life.

Skelly has been suffering from a bad tooth and ulcerated jaw and had to let up a little. He was working so hard that the let-up will do him good and he will be ready for the trials of training in another day or two.

Skelly has sparred with everybody around the quarters, including McAuliffe and Carroll, and showed himself so clever that all the camp is boasting of his chances. He will have the advantage in height and reach, and neither he nor Reynolds, his backer, seem at all alarmed about his temporary let-up.

ANNE HATHAWAY'S COTTAGE.

It is Now the Property of the Shakspeare Birthplace Trust.

London, Aug. 22.—It will be of interest to the admirers of Shakspeare to learn that Anne Hathaway's cottage at Shottery has been purchased by the Shakspeare birthplace trust from Ald. Thompson, of Stratford-on-Avon. In March, 1891, Mr. Thompson offered to sell the cottage to the trustees for £3,000, but the amount was considered excessive. The matter was then dropped until March of the present year when the cottage was publicly advertised for sale. The trustees again opened negotiations and ultimately decided to exercise the powers conferred upon them by the recent act of parliament and purchase the cottage, paying therefor the sum of £3,000. This large sum absorbed nearly the whole of the reserve fund, but the purchase was almost imperative because it was known that other prospective buyers, not only in England but in America and elsewhere, had communicated with Mr. Thompson.

After purchasing the structure the trustees had yet to become the possessors of the more interesting relics which it contained, the old bedstead and furniture, which belonged to the occupier and custodian, Mrs. Baker. Her maiden name was Mary Taylor and her great grandmother was Susan Hathaway, said to be a collateral descendant of Anne Hathaway, the poet's wife. She was born at Aston Cantlow, but was taken to the cottage when a child and has resided there for over seventy years, for fifty of which she has shown the place to visitors. Although 80 years of age she still retains very vivid recollections of the cottage in its original condition.

Some fifty-five years ago her father sold the house to a Mr. Barnes, a farmer, for £325, but, yielding to her pleading, she being the heiress to the property, he retained the furniture and lived and ended his days in the cottage. Mr. Barnes divided the house into tenements, but Mrs. Baker continued to live in the original kitchen and removed the historical bedstead from its original place on the down stairs floor into an upper room in her portion of the house.

The kitchen is wainscoted with carved oak, but several pieces are missing. The oak seat under the window on which the poet and his love are depicted sitting in the courtship engraving, has disappeared, but the old worm-eaten settle is preserved in the kitchen. These, with the valuable old dresser, Bible and linen chests and other interesting relics have now been acquired by the trustees.

Mrs. Baker will continue in charge as custodian, with her son, and will end her days in the "Old Home." The trustees will restore the cottage to its original condition, and in this Mrs. Baker's recollection of things long ago will be of great help. Among the many things the trustees have taken over is the first visitors' book, dating back to 1847. Henceforth the cottage will be governed by the same regulations as the birthplace and New Place and an admission of sixpence for each person will be charged.

ENGLISH COMMENT.

The London Daily News Writes on the Tennessee Miners.

London, Aug. 22.—The Daily News commenting on the American strikes, strongly denounces what it terms the "barbarous and treacherous" methods of the strikers, especially the miners. It says: "These men are not even entitled to the name "strikers" in its ordinary sense. They are not even insurgents, who respect the ordinary laws of war. They are destroyers of life and property. No wonder that public feeling throughout America is aroused to a great degree against these despoilers; and, bearing the circumstances in mind, we must make due allowances for the substance and tone of Gov. Buchanan's proclamation. We do not desire to see the rioters lynched, but it will be an evil day for democracy if such acts of brutality escape just punishment."

BANK INSOLVENT.

Melbourne Shareholders Discussing the Mercantile Bank.

London, Aug. 22.—The committee of the Melbourne shareholders of the Mercantile bank, of Australia, reports that the bank has been insolvent since 1889. It also reports that Sir Matthew Davies, the chairman of the directorate, made advances to various companies he promoted, losing £500,000 in such outlays.

It is probable that the shareholders will be obliged to meet a deficit of £475,000. London shareholders largely bought issues at a premium.

Threats of criminal prosecution are made against the chairman and directors.

Twenty-Fifth Anniversary.

At their pleasant home, 920 East Broadway, on Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. A. Romeyn Rogers entertained about sixty invited guests, the occasion being the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage.

Mrs. Rogers wore her bridal costume of 25 years ago, dress, bonnet, gloves and slippers, and appeared so young and charming in the quaint, pretty dress, her guests could hardly realize that it had been 25 years since she became a bride.

The lawn, where the bountifully laden tables were spread, was brilliantly lighted, and made a very pretty picture.

The presents were numerous, and of every description, a beautiful china dinner set, gold watch, handsome silver picture frame, silver oyster forks, and souvenir spoons, being a few of the beautiful gifts received.

Among those present from abroad were: Miss King, Oxford; Mrs. Ingram and her daughters, the Misses Mary and Lucy Ingram, Detroit; Mrs. Joseph Post, Sandusky; Miss Nellie Carr, Hamilton, Ohio.

Some of the Toledo guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Duston, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. W. Foster, Mrs. R. G. Interesting Debate.

At the pleasant home of Mrs. S. I. Moore, 2233 Maplewod avenue, the Political Equality club held its monthly meeting Saturday afternoon.

The attendance was not so large as usual, many of the club's members being out of the city, but the meeting was made very interesting by the several readings and a debate on "An Educational Qualification for Suffrage," Mrs. Claude Q. Murphy supporting the negative side and Miss Katharine Calkins, the affirmative.

The arguments in the affirmative were made on the line that the requirement of an educational qualification before conferring the right of suffrage would be an incentive to knowledge and that it is impossible to have intelligent laws when the law-makers are made up largely of an illiterate class, unable to read or write the ballots they cast.

The negative side was very ably argued from the standpoint that the ballot is in itself the greatest educator, and that an educational qualification would introduce class rule, thus defeating the ends for which this republic was established.

After the debators had finished the debate was left open for discussion, nearly every lady present taking part. It seemed to be the general opinion that a universal suffrage is the only safe basis on which a republic for, by, and of the people can be built.

Miss Kate Milan was present and gave some interesting information respecting the Isabella pavilion, the gist of which appeared in Saturday's Bee.

The proposed lecture course was discussed but no definite action taken on account of the absence of so many members.

The meeting adjourned at 5:30 to meet September 17 with Mrs. Quigley, Tenth street.

The printer who made "cholera in the Caucasus," to read "cholera in the Caucuses," was something of a genius.

The revolt of the miners in Tennessee against working with convicts at convict wages doesn't differ greatly, in principle, from the revolt of mill and mine workers, in Pennsylvania, or elsewhere, against having for co-workers cheap foreign labor, with prices brought down accordingly.

Wool is lower in price this year than it was last. Woolen goods, even in some instances to shoddy mixtures, are increased in price. If this is the kind of protection the wool grower needs, evidently he needs more of it; a 60-per cent. tax is too small. Why not remove the tariff from wool as from sugar and pay producers so much bounty per pound? The conditions of the two products in the country are similar. The bounty principle, put into practice as is the other method of extortion, would soon open the eyes of the people.

It is singular how little the tariff question in this country has changed in more than half a century.—Boston Journal.

Indeed it is singular that a law made by feudal Spain when she was at war with nearly every country on the continent should be a tenet of party policy in free America, to-day. Its extremes were in the Spain of old and in this country under the 32 years of republican rule. Then as now, it was made for the enrichment of the few at the expense of the many. And the republican party asks that this be called protection.

In the cotton industry of Massachusetts, Carroll D. Wright reports that 28.61 per cent. of the males and 49.70 per cent. of the females employed receive less than five dollars a week. During the weeks past the cotton industries of Massachusetts have been held up, by the high-taxers, as shining examples of the benefits of protection. The handsome dividends of stockholders have been published, and, in one lonesome instance, a small advance of wage in a special class of work. Mr. Wright's figures, along with these reports, show very conclusively who gets the benefit of the bonus decreed by law.

The American farmer is sure of his home market and as much of the foreign market as the tax manipulators will allow him. He gets no "protection;" he needs none, but he does need all the chance there is in the world for sale of goods in the world's markets. The Australians have just passed retaliatory measures against this country, the effect of which is already felt in California in canned fruits, in which industry quite an extensive trade had been established. This is the kind of interference with his trade that the farmer should protest against and vote against.

New York editors are making lengthy comment on the fact that "young Peter Gilsey, heir to the large estate left by the late Peter Gilsey" has married a shop girl, the daughter of a poor woman. The bride is described as cultured, refined and attractive, and aiding generously by her own exertions in the support of her mother. Even the democratic New York Herald calls it "Cupid's curious work" and hopes "there may be nothing to regret in the young man's act." Sensible people outside the air of New York and snobdom will hope the girl will never be sorry for the risk she has taken.

If one of the few colored voters who are working for Mr. Cleveland should write and ask him if he believes in the constitutional amendment adopted in Mississippi by Mr. Cleveland's supporters, whereby 75,000 colored men have been disfranchised, he would get no response.—Indianapolis Journal.

If any voter, white or colored, should write to President Harrison and ask him why his attempted dicker with southerners, in 1888, to consent to and advise the disfranchisement of colored voters in the south if southern white voters would support his candidacy, came to naught? he might reply, "because the southerners scorned to make such a bargain," but the supposition is, the president would maintain a discreet silence.

One New York republican organ charges the democratic congress with extravagance in pension grants and appropriation and another bids the union veterans to notice that democrats are enemies to pension granting. The distinction these harmonious organs fail to make is, that democrats are opposed to pension sharks and corrupt deals, opposed to the extravagance and rottenness that have characterized the management of the department for the payment of party debts and the enrichment of party pets.

The Boston-Transcript invites the attention of Europeans, who take it upon themselves to say anything about our labor troubles, to the fact that "our rioters and instigators of riot were born chiefly on European soil." Another fact might be added to this one: These foreign rioters were mostly brought here, under contract, (in defiance of law and public sentiment) to displace American workingmen in mills and factories. Lured here by the wonderful stories of wages, they soon find how they have been duped and resort to the savage method of their kind for revenge and redress.

MILLIONAIREDOM.

"Notes and Queries" takes the New York Tribune's table of millionaires and apportions them, correctly, among the states. New York, outside of the city, leads in the list with 428; Pennsylvania second, with 399; Illinois third, 340; Ohio fourth, 174; California, 162; New Jersey, 127; Michigan, 104; New York city, 1,275 (not a full estimate). South Dakota is the only state that has none. Wyoming 1; North Dakota 1; New Mexico 3.

A study of this table shows that the money-center cities and the states with protected industries determine who are the elect in millionairedom.

RETALIATION.

President Harrison has exercised his prerogative and levied a 20-cent toll on Canadian vessels passing the Sault canal, as a retaliatory measure against the Canadians for a like toll on American vessels through the Welland. Under present existing circumstances, there was nothing else to do. But the circumstances are an outgrowth of republican "reciprocity," which in instances where large interests are concerned, develops into simple retaliation. It is a shame upon both countries, that, with professed friendship, with a oneness of people, and a mutuality of interests, with all the beautiful things we have been saying and doing in the name of peace, good will, arbitration, Pan-American, Christian brotherhood and the like, this petty and spiteful tit-for-tat state of affairs should be the result.

WILLIAM M. SPRINGER.

The speeches and writings of William M. Springer on the paramount issue of the campaign, Tariff Reform, are collected and published in neat and readable form by Charles L. Webster & Company, New York Publishers. Mr. Springer has earned the reputation among political foes as well as friends, of being able, earnest, honest, argumentative and consistent, in his treatment of this important question. The book is one for students of political economy, irrespective of party affiliation, to study. To university scholarship, Mr. Springer adds strong political everyday application of precept and a thorough knowledge of his subject in its legal and commercial aspects, though long and varied experience as a legislator. The volume contains fine photogravure portraits of Cleveland and Stevenson, David A. Wells, and frontispiece of Mr. Springer. Biographical sketch and introduction are by A. J. Jones of the Associated Press.

This is eminently a work for the people, clear, logical and convincing and that the democratic party is in earnest in its desire to conduct an educational campaign is shown by the placing of this book in the hands of the national committee as a factor of good work in the campaign.

TEUTONIA MANNERCHOIR

Celebrated Its Twenty-Fifth Anniversary

With a Grand Picnic, Banquet and Musical Festival—Eloquent Address by Prof. Friedberg.

The members of the Teutonia Mannerchor celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the society yesterday as only the amusement-loving German people know how to do.

Besides the large Toledo society there were mannerchors present from Detroit, Defiance, Ft. Wayne, Findlay, Lima, Cleveland, and other towns. Mr. Emil Ring, who will be director of the great international festival at Cleveland next year, being among the well known gentlemen present from that city.

By noon most of the visiting societies had arrived, and the banquet was held at Druid hall.

At the conclusion of the banquet the societies repaired to Bellevue park. At 4 o'clock Mr. Wm. Schmidt, president of the society, Prof. Friedberg and Mr. Peter Metzler took their places on the stand erected for the speakers.

Mr. Schmidt welcomed the guests in a neat speech, and gave a concise history of the mannerchor. In conclusion he introduced Prof. Friedberg as orator of the day.

Prof. Friedberg delivered a very eloquent address in German, which was warmly applauded.

He began by speaking of the realistic tendencies of our age, and said that while he didn't under-value the great results that the struggle for existence has brought about, the struggle that has deforested this continent, changed deserts into blooming landscapes, and produced economic wealth, still it has left the realm of the ideal almost entirely untouched. It seemed one of the special missions of the Germans of this country to show to the American people a harmonious combination of the practical and beautiful. The Germans have performed this mission to the fullest extent. The German music has constituted the bridge over which German life entered the American family.

He spoke of the great influence of music, how it accompanies man through life, and is the bearer of all our emotions. He said, "Music stands at the cradle of the infant, when the happy mother sings the lullaby song; it stands at the grave when the sorrow of the saddened heart rings out in mournful melodies. Music idealizes life—it elevates us far above the common plane. Music is the true civilizer; he who has given to a nation its songs has done more than the wisest law-giver. Music liberated the nations. Neither Rousseau's philosophy, nor Mirabeau's eloquence, nor Robespierre's guillotine would have emancipated France from Bourbonic oppression if Roger de L'Isle had not sung his Marseillaise. In vain would the political fugitive of Europe seek his ideal of liberal institutions on this continent if the notes of the 'Star Spangled Banner' had not been sounded. Moltke's genius would have never conquered the arch enemy if the thunder of French cannons had not been drowned by the powerful refrain.

"'Dear Fatherland, let peace be thine; firm stands and true the watch on the Rhine.'

"Music is the most virtuous of all arts. Its indulgence leaves behind no regret, no remorse. Here nobody seeks a selfish advantage; here the greedy jealousy of commercial life has disappeared; the voice of egotism is silenced; the bitter strife in church and state, here it is forgotten. Whatever may make us hostile, hard and discontented, here it vanishes in the ocean of melodies. Here we are only human beings; here no one seeks to gain so that the other may lose; here no one wants to conquer so that another be defeated.

"However our views may differ in other respects, whatever of contentions yesterday may have involved or to-morrow bring to us, whatever country we may call our native land, whatever good we may worship, in whatever sphere we may fight the struggle of existence—music unites what other powers may separate. Here we are ready to believe that man is good and life beautiful."

The speaker then proceeded to particularize the influence of German music in this country. He spoke of the life and mission of the singing societies and closed with the recitation of a beautiful German poem, eulogizing music.

Tremendous applause and cheering rewarded the eloquent speaker, who was listened to by nearly 5,000 people.

Mr. Peter Mettler followed with a short speech, which was well received.

The festival was great musical and social success and reflects great credit upon the Teutonia Maennerchor and its efficient committee of arrangements. It will long be remembered by all who participated.

GRAIN RECEIPTS.

Wonderful Increase At This Point.

Special Market Report of C. A. King & Co. Gives Some Valuable Information.

The special market report issued by C. A. King & Co. Saturday shows a wonderful increase in grain receipts at this point. It says:

Receipts.—If any one had said a month ago that Toledo's receipts this August would be 7,000,000, as large as a year ago; that St. Louis would receive over 6,000,000, 1,000,000 more than a year ago, and Baltimore as much, his word would have been doubted. But such promises to be the case.

The winter wheat crop of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas and Missouri this year is only 200,000,000 bushels, against 240,000,000 last year. The price of wheat is 27 cents below a year ago, yet farmers have sold more freely.

While receipts continue larger than a year ago, there can hardly be any material improvement in prices. Speculation has helped to sustain prices but is timid while the farmers sell so freely.

Receipts this week have been the same as the previous two weeks at St. Louis and here and a trifle larger at Baltimore. Our advices indicate there is now enough on the way to keep up present receipts here most of the month. St. Louis should receive less as they are over 6 cents below us and shipping some here. September always shows a decided falling off here and some at the other winter wheat markets and this year will not be any exception.

The following figures are interesting as showing the increase:

	Toledo This Week.	Toledo All Aug.	Toledo Sept.
1892	1,550,000	.....	.....
1891	1,600,000	7,000,000	3,000,000
1890	280,000	1,800,000	450,000
1889	480,000	2,500,000	1,200,000
1888	750,000	3,000,000	1,600,000
1887	435,000	2,400,000	1,300,000
1886	830,000	4,000,000	2,300,000
1885	405,000	1,700,000	1,200,000
1884	810,000	1,200,000	3,500,000

Speaking of the foreign production the report says: "The agricultural bureau has stopped gathering reports—another step backward in the interest of economy."

Of the Buffalo strike it says:

Keep an eye on the railroad strike at Buffalo. It has checked new business and should it spread, it would become a serious matter. It was the principal cause of weakness yesterday. Should it be settled it would restore confidence and probably help prices a little.

SERIOUS ACCIDENTS.

A Farmer's Wagon Topples Over An Embankment

And the Remains of the Damaged Wagon Are Subsequently Demolished by a Street Car.

James Hammond, a young farmer living near the asylum, came to Toledo Saturday for a load of wood which he secured in East Toledo.

Turning off Cherry on to Superior street it was noticed from the actions of the horses that the man was either drunk or dazed.

There is a steep embankment here and at Tom Grady's residence, corner of Superior and Orange streets, the team, one of which, it appears, was blind, went directly to and over the embankment before the startled bystanders who had been watching the antics of the driver could interfere.

The wagon with its load of wood tumbled over and over and finally brought up against Grady's house. Witnesses of the accident hurried to the rescue and after some time managed to get the horses, driver and part of the wagon out of the debris. Hammond seemed dazed by his misfortune. The two front wheels and tongue of the wagon were saved from the wreck and to this he hitched up his team.

Misfortunes, however, never come singly. Just as he reached the corner of Erie on Adams street an electric car came bowling along and biff, bang, and the remains of the wrecked wagon was made into kindling wood.

One part of the wagon with its contents lies at the corner of Superior and Orange streets, and the balance on Adams near Erie.

Mr. Hammond did well if he reached home alive. Misfortune was evidently right with him Saturday.

TWO WITNESSES

Wanted in the Bower Investigation Disappear.

The Board of Revision Will Meet To-Morrow to Prepare a Report —No White-Washing.

Two important witnesses wanted in the Bower investigation case have strangely and mysteriously disappeared.

Asked this morning by a Bee if the investigation would be continued to-morrow, Mayor Emmick said:

"The board of revision will meet to-morrow morning and prepare to report."

"There are some more witnesses to be examined, are there not?"

"Well, we had two, but they have somehow disappeared. We know nothing about it more than they cannot be found. We were prepared to go on with the investigation to-morrow, but find we cannot We will meet and make our report."

"Will it be a white-washing report, Mr. Mayor?"

"No, sir. The public will get the facts just as we got them. They will get the whole truth."

"Who will make the appointment in the event of Mr. Bower being removed?"

"The power of appointment lies with the mayor, of course subject to the confirmation of the council. Should I have to appoint a man in Mr. Bower's place it will be a man who will give general satisfaction, I promise you that."

PIONEER NOTES.

Pioneer, O., Aug. 22.—(Special)—At the M. E. Sunday school picnic at Bird Lake, Hillsdale county, Mich., on last Thursday, over thirty carriages and the Pioneer band were in the procession. The ten boats hired for the occasion were in use all day.

"Billy" Stevenson, arrested for a violation of the Sunday ordinance, had a hearing before Mayor Gay, and was found guilty and made to pay costs and fine. Overly, who was arrested for a similar offense, plead guilty, and the case was disposed of accordingly.

PELLIGRINI RESIGNS.

Senor Saeng Pena Requested to Take His Place.

London, Aug. 22.— A Buenos Ayres dispatch published in the Standard this morning says: "President Pelligrini has resigned in consequence of a conflict between the executive and congress, the outcome of the refusal of the minister of marine to answer an interpellation in regard to the naval estimates.

"Congress has requested Senor Saeng Pena to assume the reins of government."

BRYAN.

Preparations for the Coming Fair—Personal Notes.

Bryan, O., Aug. 22.—(Special)—Miss Maude Daniels, of Wauseon, is the guest of friends in Bryan.

Mrs. David Morrison and her daughter, Mrs. Eunice Bagley, from San Diego, Cal., have been visiting friends in Bryan the past week. They leave to-day for New York city, to make that their home in future.

Attorney C. V. Wagner, of Toledo, was in Bryan Saturday.

The annual institute of Williams county teachers is being held in Stryker to-day.

The Bryan Fair Co. have put up 100 sheds, and the entries for the coming races are more than a hundred, so the company will go to work right away on twenty or more sheds. The grand stand is nearly completed, and it is built in first-class order.

Ernest Boothman is home from Oberlin college.

The Sunday schools of Bryan will hold a union picnic on Wednesday, this week.

SPOILED SENSATION.

A Wife Accuses Her Husband of Robbery

And Desertion—The Former Charge is Disproved by the Presence of the Husband.

What promised to create somewhat of a sensation occurred this morning in the office of Attorney J. S. Southard. A well known lady rushed in and immediately retained Mr. Southard to recover several thousand dollars stolen from her, she said, by her husband who had skipped out. She had drawn the money from a banking institution here. She had the money yesterday, but this morning the money and husband had both mysteriously disappeared.

An hour later the woman's husband entered the office of Attorney Hugh F. Shunck in the Produce Exchange, and retained Mr. Shunck in the case.

"It is a h—— of a story to start," he said indignantly. "I came down town this morning as usual and an hour after leaving home a friend informs me that I am accused by my own wife of stealing her money and leaving the city. The last charge you can see for yourself is not true and the other is equally untrue. The woman must be crazy."

Mr. Southard went to the bank and had the payment of a check for $2,000 stoppedan d Mr. Schuck did likewise in the interest of his client.

There is evidently a singular misunderstanding somewhere. Mr. Schunck, talking with a Bee in the subject, said he believed the woman had placed the money somewhere and failed to remember the place. Either that or she had lost it.

In view of the apparent misunderstanding the Bee suppresses names until there are further developments.

The husband is still in the city and is attending to business as usual.

AT THE THEATERS.

Tuxedo, a Barrel of Money and Under Ground.

The Attractions for This Week—The Opening of the People's To - Night.

This evening the People's theater will open for the season with the realistic play, A Barrel of Money. The piece has numerous good qualities and is built to please all tastes, combining light comedy, melo-drama, music, specialties, set off with elaborate scenic and mechanical effects. A Barrel of Money will hold the boards all week.

Minstrels and Tuxedo.

Thatcher's Minstrels and Tuxedo will be the opening attraction at Wheeler's Thursday evening. Tuxedo was the novelty in theatrical circles last season, and while it was good then is doubly so at present, having been reconstructed and made as perfect as possible. The musical comedy part is bright and goes with a snap, while there is nothing lacking in the minstrel performance. It is a happy union of two fun-making elements.

"A New Labor Play."

Underground, a story of the mines, will be seen at the Wheeler opera house next Friday and Saturday evenings. The play is from the pen of Mr. Daniel L. Hart, of the Wilkesbarre, Pa., Plain Dealer, and is founded on scenes and incidents in and about the author's native home. The struggle of capital and labor forms an interesting plot, which the author has handled with great skill. The play abounds in sterling scenes, interwoven with bright comedy. The scenery is gorgeous and picturesque, one act showing a coal-breaker at night with a wonderful moon-rise effect. The third act, showing the interior of a coal mine with its practical workings, the shaft and constantly ascending and descending carriages, forms one of the most realistic scenes ever attempted on the stage. The explosion in the last forms a wonderful climax. The cast is a capable one, headed by the popular young actor, Mr. Frank Karrington. Numerous specialities are also introduced.

GERMAN CATHOLICS

To Celebrate the Discovery of America.

Meeting Last Evening at St. Mary's Hall and Preliminary Arrangements Made.

Last evening a largely attended meeting of German Catholics was held at St. Mary's hall to arrange for the proper celebration of the discovery of America by Columbus. This is in accordance with the edict recently issued from Rome by Pope Leo XIII.

The meeting was called to order by Rev. Father Kramer, S. J., who briefly outlined the object of the meeting.

It was meet and proper, he said, that Catholics should unite in celebrating the great event.

After some discussion it was decided to hold the celebration on Oct. 12.

Religious services will be held during the day and in the evening the St. Mary's Dramatic Society will present the interesting drama, "Columbus."

The preliminary steps having been taken it was decided to adjourn until later, when committees will be appointed and arrangements perfected.

DISASTROUS BLAZE.

Berlin, Aug. 22.—One hundred and forty buildings have been destroyed by fire in the town of Sontra. Among the buildings destroyed are a number of the principal business houses. The loss will be heavy.

ATTEMPTED TO ESCAPE.

Sing Sing, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Charles F. Vincent and James Welch, two convicts, attempted to escape from the prison here at 2 o'clock this morning. The guards fired on them, killing Vincent and wounding Welch in the left leg.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.

Fostoria, O., Aug. 22.—(Special)—About 10 o'clock Saturday night, Mrs. Mary Kratz, aged about 60 years, was accidentally shot by her 18-year-old son, the bullet striking in the left breast near the arm pit and penetrating to a depth so great that up to this time the physicians have been unable to locate it.

ANOTHER GAS SUIT.

Kerlin Bros. Sue the City to Recover $102,817.30.

The Case Filed in Common Pleas and Will Doubtless be Taken to Circuit Court.

In common pleas court to-day, suit will be filed by Kerlin Bros. against the city of Toledo to recover $102,817.30 for material and labor furnished in the construction of the Toledo natural gas plant.

This is one among the many claims which the circuit court by a decision rendered last spring, held to be illegal, for the reason that in the opinion of the court the gas trustees had no authority to contract indebtedness above the original amount set aside for that purpose.

This suit will ultimately reach the circuit court, and its disposition by that tribunal will be watched with interest.

A PUBLIC BENEFACTOR.

It is possible that many persons, even in Toledo, never heard of the "Rocky mountain canary bird," whose notes are loud enough to be heard for several squares. Englewood is a delightful portion of the city, but being some two and a half miles from the postoffice, almost every family has heretofore been compelled to keep an alarm clock to enable them to get an early start, when they wished to catch a morning train or take the boat for a day's outing. Now, anyone who has had experience with alarm clocks knows that they are very "on sartain," and when you most depend on them they don't work. Aside from the matter of bills for repairs, no small item, as any one can attest who has had to do with clock-tinkers; the wear and tear upon the consciences of a whole neighborhood to keep from using cuss-words (when they got to the depot or boat landing "just too late,") was enormous.

Now all is changed, and although there is no longer need of clock-tinkers or alarm clocks in Englewood, if any one gets left 'tis surely their own fault, for the notes of the "Canary" never fail, and are several times repeated between 4 and 6 a. m.; but I must explain.

Mr. T. was one of the many who took in the Denver excursion. The railroad company took the boys for a side trip up through the mountains, obligingly calling a halt at any point desired. Whilst gazing out of the window Mr. T. espied a "bird farm," and at once resolved to take a bird home with him. The train was stopped and after some parley a bargain was made with the farmer and a genuine Rocky mountain canary was transferred to the baggage car. All went well until arrival at Denver. When about to begin the long journey home, many passengers who had lost much sleep "seeing the elephant," realized that to be kept awake by even the melodious notes of a Rocky mountain canary (as I write I hear his warbling song) wasn't to be thought of, so his birdship was transferred to another train and sent by express at an expense of near $50. By the way, it was a little provoking for Mr. T. to learn after returning to Denver that the farmer had charged him about three times Denver prices for the same article. That was taking advantage of a stranger.

Those who heard the bird at his mountain home think his voice is strained, probably from attempting to drown the noise of the on-rushing train. However, he can still be heard by the entire neighborhood (especially between 4 and 6 a. m.), and although 'tis almost impossible to interpret the song in words, it sounds like "Ye—augh—ugh—augh—e—oh—ah—ah," long drawn out and oft repeated. Some call them "donkeys" or "burros," but they are genuine Rocky Mountain canaries. As yet there has been no public expression of sentiment in regard to the matter. Will advise later if a medal is tendered Mr. T. in recognition of his services. W. C. F.

The road will be constructed as soon as the preliminary arrangements can be made. It will be 13 5-8 miles in length and will cost about $150,000 equipped and ready for running.

The track will be built alongside of the public highway, but will not interfere with travel and traffic. A car will leave each city every hour from 5 a. m. until midnight, and run on schedule time, although it will stop on signal at any point.

THE SLEEPING CAR.

Coelum non animum mutant.
We lie with senses lulled and still
'Twixt dream and thought, 'twixt night and day.
While smoke and steam their office fill
To bear our prostrate forms away.

The stars, the clouds, the mountains, all
Glide by us through the midnight deep;
The name of slumbering cities fall
Like feathers from the wings of sleep

Till at the last in morning light,
Beneath the alien sky we stand;
Vast spaces traversed in a night;
Another clime, another land.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

More Satisfactory.

To the Editor: The police matron is finding much work these days, having had nine charges to care for the past week. When a few years since the humanitarian women of Toledo demanded a police matron they were told by the powers that were at the police station that there was seldom work to do for a police matron, as scarcely half a dozen women required searching in a year, and then a woman from a neighboring saloon could always be had for the asking. The matron, however, became a fixed fact, and for a time considerable friction was the result, and but little work was given her to do. The public, however, were being educated to the idea that women, children and young girls, taken for any cause to the police station, required womanly care and should have it. And now, what is the result? Babies, young erring girls, little children, women, depraved, vicious and unfortunate, so fill the matron's quarters that she will soon require more room. The appointment of Mesdames Fray, Bissell and Kline on the Lucas county visiting board of charitable and correctional institutions, with official power to act and report what they see and hear, is having excellent effect. Doors are no longer locked against them by the matron, they are treated with respect, aid in caring for the criminal and unfortunate, and a better feeling is being established between police powers and Toledo women interested in humanity and good government. Thanks to the persistence of women taxpayers and humanitarians' efforts to treat the unfortunate with justice and mercy are bearing good fruit. MARTHA.

THE DETROIT EXPOSITION.

To-morrow is the opening day for the ten days' entertainment of this enterprising association. $10,000 in purses and stakes will be given for trotters, pacers and runners, and the entrance fee only 5 per cent. straight, nothing additional for winners. Horses can also compete for the $1,460 in premiums to be awarded to standard-bred trotters.

A new amphitheater, built expressly for the live stock exhibits, has been provided with an unrivalled list of attractions in addition, so as to hold all classes of people interested the entire fortnight, and impressing the live stock exhibit constantly on the attention of thousands of people wh owould not otherwise notice it.

The working exhibits in the main building will constitute one of the most attractive portions of the whole exposition. The most interesting of all is probably the electrical exhibit occupying space 16 by 160 feet, and showing a great variety of electrical appliances with a large number of electrical machines in motion.

There will be extensive displays also by a great many manufacturers, including the making and sticking of pins, brush making by machinery, basket making, broom making, saw making and fine scroll sawing, candy making, glass blowing, cigar making, the printing of music, the repairing of bicycles, the weaving of wire cloth, the making of ornamental pottery, of pants, cigars, pianos, harness and others.

The entries in every department are much larger than ever before, and the exposition promises to be the best ever held. The steamer Idlewild will stop at the exposition dock both ways, giving visitors nearly five hours on the grounds.

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED,

As a general family remedy for dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

THE LAMPPOST.

From my library window I see, day by day,
A red iron letter-box over the way,
And once in awhile, when I've nothing to do,
I number its callers—and here are a few.

The first is a maiden with cheeks all ablush,
I know her heart throbs like the throat of a thrush,
That the half-hundred paces she's come have seemed "blocks,"
Ere she drops her first love letter into the box.

A young husband next, with his face lit with joy,
Which tells quite plainly that "it is a boy;"
He dashes off a letter, with lines all a-slant,
To tell sister Jennie that now she's an aunt.

And next a maidservant with apron and cap,
Who looks as though sadly in need of a nap;
Poor soul! she's been weeping; and now, as she nears,
A black-bordered missive shows cause for her tears.

Another now comes to the red iron box,
Of taste rather "loud" in the matter of frocks.
"Quite pretty," you'd say, but true beauty ne'er sofks
The soul that's enmeshed in its mystical toils.

Bent, haggard, untidy—who now totters near,
His features fast set in a cynical sneer?
A not to his lawyer—the sneaking old vice—
To "foreclose that mortgage and buy at half price."

And last comes the postman, who whisks out his key,
Unfastens the padlock, and, nodding to me
With a jerk that explains that there's no time to lag,
Walks off with the letters all safe in his bag.

Envoy.

Come one and come all—there is plenty of room
In the red iron box for your joy and your gloom,
Your sin and your sorrow, your hopes and your fears,
That will all have flown—where? in a hundred of years!

—C. H. Luders.

There are nearly three thousand stitches in a pair of hand-sewed boots.

A 5 cent nickle of 1877 is worth $1, and a nickle 5-cent piece of 1878 about 15 cents.

A giant's skeleton has been unearthed at zBruswick, Ga., which is nearly nine feet long.

The Carlton Club, of London, which has 4,000 members, is unquestionably the richest in the world.

A woman of Omaha, Neb., went to Izke Manowa on Wednesday, and on her return missed a valuable diamond earring. On the following day she returned to the lage, hoping to hear something of the missing jewel. A few minutes after her arrival she noticed the sunlight reflecting from some bright object on the beach, and it proved to be the lost diamond.

A Portland (Me.) fisherman had hooked a swordfish, but neglected to haul taut the line. The fish, feeling the slack, turned and made directly for the boat, driving his sword through the bottom of the craft and striking the man in the boat. The fisherman was so badly hurt that the vessel to which he belonged was compelled to carry him home.

Says a New York dispatch of August 10: Michael Ferris, aged 24, died at St. Catherine's hospital last night, having swallowed embalming fluid, which he obtained at an undertaking establishment in Brooklyn and drank with suicidal intent. He was discouraged, not having been able to secure work. He met a party of friends in front of the undertaker's and went in and took a bottle which stood on a shelf and laughing said he would embalm himself before death. He succeeded.

The virtues of the hip pocket beaufet, not generally conceded by prohibitionists and the like, were vindicated for once at least at South Beach, near New York, the other day. A snake-charming girl in a museum was suddenly bitten by a Texas "rattler," which she was fondling. In the midst of the screams and excitement the hands of some half dozen resolute men went straight to the pockets aforesaid, and fortunately for the girl the flasks were not empty. The girl's rescuers probably explained why they were so well supplied on the ground that they anticipated some such mishap.

A western coin dealer has recently obtained a very curious lot of copper coins from Sweden for the collection which he is making for the world's fair. They were coined during the sixteenth century, when Sweden adopted a rule that its circulating medium should be nothing but copper. The coins are great flat pieces roughly cut into squares. The smallest is four inches square and worth 30 cents, and the largest over a foot square and with a face value of $4. Each slab is stamped in several places with an inscription giving its date of issue and its denomination. The largest weighs over four pounds. When this coinage was in circulation ladies out shopping had to have servants in attendance to carry their purses.

"They do not classify crime in Corea," said J. B. Winkler, now stopping at the Lindell, in St. Louis. "It is just as serious a matter to be convicted of stealing a pound of rice as plotting treason or committing wholesale murder. There is but one penalty for all crime—to cut off the culprit's head. During my visit to that country last summer a pair of valuable sleeve buttons were taken from me. I suspected a servant and he was taken before the tribunal and subjected to a rigorous examination. There was absolutely no evidence tending to fasten the crime upon him. I suspected the fellow of having swallowed the buttons to avoid discovery, and the authorities politely offered to cut him open in search of evidence if I said so."

When a sailing master wishes to buy oysters in the ports of the Chesapeake he runs up to the masthead an oyster basket, and presently has plenty offered at the vessel's side. Down at Chincotengue island the basket at the masthead is sometimes accompanied by a flag of eccentric squares in different colors. During the closed season for oysters the basket and flag indicate that the master wishes to buy clams. The Chincottengue clam digger works during the greater part of the year, and a very spry man in a spot where clams are thick can tread out a great many hundred in a day. Clams fetch from $1 to $1.50 per 1,000 at Chincoteague, which seems a great deal for the money when one thinks of clam chowder at a fashionable restaurant.

The Philadelphians at Bay Head, N. J., are astonishing the other habitues of that resort by exhibiting their latest fad in the way of dancing. It is known as the "crab-claw grip," and is most suitable for the waltz. The gentleman places his right arm around his partner, putting his hand as high as possible between her shoulders. She elevates her left arm until it is at right angles with her body and bends her arm until her fingers rest on her shoulder instead of her partner's arm. With his left hand he takes hold of her right wrist, her right arm being in a similar position to her left, and holds it nearly under her chin with her hand flapping. After this position has been secured they proceed, in true Philadelphia style, to dance without regard to the musicians.

A New Yorker taking a Sunday stroll not far beyond the city limits was surprised at the conduct of two-score of sparrows that fluttered in the air a foot or two above a bare rock in the midst of an empty pasture. Now and then a bird would light on the rock, but most of the time the grayish-brown flock poised uncesily just over the spot. It looked at first as if the birds were catching insects, though none was visible. On the human intruder's nearer approach the birds still in the air took flight, and most as many more sprang out of the grass immediately about the rock. At the same instant the head and rapidly moving tongue of a large blacksnake became visible just behind the rock, and he too made off. It was apparently a clear case of bird charming by the snake.

THE OTHER MAN.

By Rudyard Kipling.

Far back in the "seventies," before they had built any public offices at Simla her parents made Miss Gaurey marry Col. Schreiderling.

He could not have been much more than 35 years her senior.

Understand, I do not blame Schreiderling. He was a good husband according to his lights, and his temper only failed him when he was being nursed, which was some seventeen days in each month. He was almost generous to his wife about money matters, and that for him was a concession. Still Mrs. Schreiderling was not happy. They married her when she was this side of 20, and had given all her poor little heart to another man. I have forgotten his name, but we will call him the Other man. He had no money and no prospects. He was not ever good looking, and I think he was in the Commissariat or Transport.

The Other Man bore his loss quietly and was transferred to as bad a station as he could find. Perhaps the climate consoled him. He suffered from intermittent fever and that may have distracted him from his other trouble. He was weak about the heart also. Both ways. One of the valves was affected and the fever made it worse. This showed itself later on.

Then many months passed and Mrs. Schreiderling took to being ill. She did not pine away like people in story books, but she seemed to pick up every form of illness that went about the station from simple fever upward. She was never more than ordinarily pretty at the best of times, and the illness made her ugly. Schreiderling said so. He prided himself on speaking his mind.

He left her at Simla one August and went down to his regiment. Then she revived a little, but she never recovered her looks. I found out at the club that the Other Man was coming up sick—very sick—on an off chance of recovery. The fever and the heart-valves had nearly killed him. She knew that, too, and she knew—what I had no interest in knowing—when he was coming up. I suppose he wrote to tell her. They had not seen each other since a month before the wedding. And here comes the unpleasant part of the story.

A late call kept me down at the Dovedell hotel till dusk one evening. Mrs. Schreiderling had been flitting up and down the Mall all the afternoon in the rain. Coming up along the Cart road, a tonga passed me, and my pony, tired with standing so long, set off at a canter. Just by the road down to the Tonga office Mrs. Schreiderling, dripping from head to foot, was waiting for the tonga. I turned uphill, as the tonga was no affair of mine, and just then she began to shriek. I went back at once and saw, under the Tonga office lamps, Mrs. Schreiderling kneeling in the wet road by the back seat of the newly-arrived tonga, screaming hideously. Then she fell face down in the dirt as I came up.

Sitting in the back seat, very square and firm, with one hand on the awning stanchion and the wet pouring off his hat and mustache, was the Other Man—dead. The sixty-mile uphill jolt had been too much for his valve, I suppose. The tonga-driver said: "The Sahib died two stages out of Solon. Therefore, I tied him with a rope, lest he should fall out by the way, and so came to Simla. Will the Sahib give me bakhshish? It," pointing to the Other Man, "should have given one rupee."

The Other Man sat with a grin on his face, as if he enjoyed the joke of his arrival; and Mrs. Schreiderling, in the mud, began to groan.

There was no one except us four in the office and it was raining heavily. The first thing was to take Mrs. Schreiderling home and the second was to prevent her name being mixed up in the affair. The tonga-driver received five rupees to find a rickshaw for Mrs. Schreiderling. He was to tell the tonga Babu afterwards of the other man and the Babu was to make such arrangements as seemed best.

Mrs. Schreiderling was taken home just as every one was going to a dance at Vice regal Lodge—"Peterhoff" it was then—and the doctor found out that she had fallen from her horse; that I had picked her up at the back of Jakko, and really deserved great credit for the prompt manner in which I had secured medical aid.

She did not die. Men of Schriederling's stamp marry women who don't die easily. They live and grow ugly.

Two years afterwards she went home and died—at Bournemouth, I think.

Schriederling, when he grew maudlin at mess, used to talk about "my poor, dear wife." He always set great store on speaking his mind, did Schriederling.

DANGER OF YAWNING.

Sound Advice on the Subject From Father to Son.

"Don't yawn like that again, Harry. In the first place, it's not polite to yawn in the presence of other persons, and in the next place, it's dangerous business, this yawning."

That's what a father said to his 7-year-old boy as the two were coming up from Coney Island, says the New York Tribune.

The boy had heard before that it was impolite to yawn, but he had never before been told that there was danger in yawning. He wanted to know right away in what the danger lay.

"Well, I'll tell you," answered the father. "If you keep on yawning, you may some day dislocate your jaw."

"Dislocate my jaw, papa? Why that's the funniest thing I ever heard in all my life. Do you mean that I might get my mouth so wide open that my jaw would get out of place and stick fast?"

"Yes, that's just what I mean."

"And did you ever know it to happen, papa?"

"Yes, it happened to me once."

"Really, papa?"

"Yes, Harry."

"When was it, papa?"

"The time that I was in jail."

"In jail, papa! Were you ever in jail?"

"Yes, Harry. I was locked up in jail once by accident. The jailer didn't know that I was in the cell, and shut the door and went off and left me."

Harry climbed up into his father's lap, put his arm round his father's neck and kissed him. "I'm sorry about that, papa," he said. "Did they keep you locked up very long?"

"Half a day, my boy, and there wasn't a book nor a newspaper nor anything else to look at. I couldn't do a thing except wait. It got to be very tiresome waiting after the novelty had worn off. It was like being shut up in a big closet with only a little window in it. After a while I began to yawn. I'd never been told how dangerous it was to yawn, and so I didn't know enough to stop it, and the first thing I knew I had yawned my jaw out of place.

"There I was, locked up in a cell, with my mouth wide open. I couldn't cry out for help, and if I could have shouted, nobody would have heard me. There was only one thing to do, and that was to keep on waiting for the jailer to come back."

"I guess you were pretty glad when the jailer came, weren't you, papa?"

"Indeed I was, Harry, and you may be sure that he was very much frightened when he discovered me there in the cell, my jaws wide apart and speechless."

"What did he do, papa?"

"He ran after a doctor as fast as his legs could carry him."

"And what did the doctor do?"

"He put my jaw into place again."

"And could you eat your dinner that night just the same as ever?"

"No, Harry, I couldn't. I had to drink my dinner that night."

Harry looked very solemn for a few seconds.

Presently he looked up into his father's face and said: "I wish I had been there to take a picture of you, papa."

COOL NERVE.

A Man Who Could Not Be Rattled Even in Church.

A Brooklyn preacher, who has been considerably advertised of late, related an incident last Sunday which many people may not yet have heard. He said that a man, who had not been to church in a very long time, finally hearkened to the persuasions of his wife and decided to go. He got the family all together and they started early. Arriving at the church there were yet very few people in it and no ushers on hand, so the man led his family well up the aisle and took possession of a nice pew.

Just as the services were about to begin a pompous looking old man came in, walked to the door of that pew and stood there, exhibiting surprise that it was occupied. The occupants moved over and offered him room to sit down, but he declined to be seated. Finally the old man produced a card and wrote upon it with a pencil:

"I pay for this pew."

He gave the card to the stranger occupant, who, the preacher remarked, had he been like many people, would have at once got up and left. But the stranger adjusted his glasses, and with a smile read the card. Then he calmly wrote beneath it:

"How much do you pay?"

To this inquiry the pompous gentleman, still standing, wrote abruptly:

"Two hundred dollars a year, sir!"

The stranger smiled as though he were pleased, looked around to compare the pew with others, admired its nice cushion and furnishings, and wrote back:

"I don't blame you. It is well worth it."

The pompous gentleman at that stage collapsed into his seat.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

THE AMERICAN SOLDIER.

The Way to See Him Is to Toil and Labor on the Trail.

To know the American soldier well you must toil with him over the desert trail when the sun beats hotly down on the dry and verdureless earth, and the dust rises in white clouds that hide the column from view, and fills the eyes, the mustaches, the ears, the mouth, with profanity and vexation, says a writer in Harper's Weekly. Here is where his songs and jokes proclaim the stuff that he is made of. Then, when you are sent out with him in the dead of winter over 20 inches of snow, your equipments and supplies on bobsleds, he it is that dismounts time and again without a murmur, pushing to help the mules up hill, and repacking the overturned sled a dozen times in a day; then, after it is, digging his hole in the snow, and putting up his tent as night, all the time joking with his "Bunkie," and ready as ever to steal a wisp of hay or a handful of oats for his shivering horse. He it is that jumped into a boiling hot spring to save the life of the daughter of a private citizen—a deed for which the citizen, who was a rich man, proffered the astounding sum of $5, and the government the gold medal of honor; he that took a flat-bottomed boat out in a heavy sea in New York harbor to rescue a drowning boy; that lost his life for his fidelity while attempting to swim an icy stream with dispatches; who, single handed, served a field gun through an action with a bullet in his leg, to hold a position; he that you believe incapable of anything but "bucking faro" and drinking strong liquors.

A VALUABLE REMEDY.

Hon. Edmund L. Pitts, the late president of the New York state senate, writes: "State of New York, Senate Chamber, Albany, March 11, 1886.

"I have used Allcock's Porous Plasters in my family for the past five years, and can truthfully say they are a valuable remedy and effect great cures. I would not be without them. I have in several instances given some to friends suffering with weak and lame backs, and they have invariably afforded certain and speedy relief. They cannot be too highly commended."

IN HER PYJAMAS.

The New Robe de Nuit Which the Fair Sex is to Adopt.

We live in a progressive age, and on every side changes are taking place. The old is fast disappearing and giving way to the new. These innovations affect every class of society and every condition and feature of our existence. They extend even to the bedroom, that most intimate and characteristic of all the apartments of the house. The highly burnished warming pan and the picturesque nightcap of our grandmothers have vanished, while the stately and dignified four-poster has given way to the far lighter and more aerial contrivance yclept the French bedstead.

And now, according to the latest edict of fashion from Paris and London, the robe de nuit, or, to call it by its plain English name, the night shirt, has got to go. Its place is to be taken by pyjamas, those nondescript garments consisting of very loose trousers and jacket, the use of which at night has hitherto been restricted to the masculine sex. The new pyjamas for feminine wear are very dainty and beautiful contrivances, trimmed with lots of ribbons and laces. Far from diminishing the attractiveness of a pretty woman they vastly increase it. That they are most healthy and more decent in the case of any emergency such as a panic of fire at night is obvious.

Pyjamas should be made of the thinnest and finest wool. Here in the United States, especially, where tropical heat is generally followed by sudden cold waves, wool next to the skin is essential for preventing chills. Moreover, they possess the inestimable advantage of being not only warm in cold weather, but of keeping the body cool when the atmosphere is hot.

Three Sleepless Nights

MARLBORO, Ohio, April 14, 1892.

The Hand Medicine Co.

DEAR SIRS:—Having used nearly four bottles of your Colic Cure, I forward you this testimonial, hoping it may benefit many mothers with suffering babies. I am the happy mother of triplets, all girls; now 14 weeks old. When they were about 3 weeks old they were taken with a very severe attack of wind colic. There were three days and nights I had two of them in my arms nearly all the time. I tried all the remedies I had ever heard of without any relief. A sample of your Colic Cure was handed me, which I used with the very best results, and I sent for more at once and I shall recommend it to every mother. I feel there is no language strong enough to express its value. I have also used several of the other Remedies and found each to be exactly as you represented them to be. I trust the Lord will forever bless you for procuring a remedy to relieve suffering innocence.

I WILL GO TO MY FATHER

Dr. Talmage's Sermon on the Prodigal Son.

Continued Ovations Meet the Brooklyn Divine in His Journeys Abroad.

London, Aug. 22.—Dr. Talmage has been preaching during the past week every day. Besides the engagements made in his original program for the week he preached in several towns which he had promised to visit earlier, but had been unable to do so, owing to so much more time than he expected being taken up by his visit to Russia, whither he went to attend the distribution of the Christian Herald relief cargo.

The cancellation of these engagements caused acute disappointments to the citizens, and as far as possible, Dr. Talmage has yielded to their entreaties to fix a later date. The audiences last week at Leeds, Bradford, Sheffield, and Derby were enormous, and at each place the popular ovation in the streets was most enthusiastic. The sermon selected for publication this week is from the text, Luke 15:18: "I will arise and go to my father."

There is nothing like hunger to take the energy out of a man. A hungry man can toil neither with pen, nor hand, nor foot. There has been many an army defeated not so much for lack of ammunition as for lack of bread. It was that fact that took the fire out of this young man of the text. Storm and exposure will wear out any man's life in time, but hunger makes quick work. The most awful cry ever heard on earth is the cry for bread.

A traveler tells us that in Asia Minor there are trees which bear fruit looking very much like the long bean of our time. The carab, this is called. Once in a while the people eat these carabs, but generally the carabs, the beans spoken of here in the text, were thrown only to the swine and they crunched them with avidity. But this young man of my text could not get even them without stealing them. So one day, amid the swine troughs, he begins to soliloquize. He says: "These are no clothes for a rich man's son to wear; this is no kind of business for a Jew to be engaged in—feeding swine; I'll go home; I'll go home; I will arise and go to my father."

I know there are a great many people who try to throw a fascination, a romance, a halo about sin; but notwithstanding all that Lord Byron and George Sand have said in regard to it, it is a mean, low, contemptible business and putting food and fodder into the troughs of a herd of iniquities that root and wallow in the soul of man is very poor business for men and women intended to be sons and daughters of the Lord Almighty. And when this young man resolved to go home it was a very wise thing for him to do, and the only question is whether we will follow him.

Satan promises large wages if we will serve him; but he clothes his victims with rags, and he pinches them with hunger, and when they start out to do better he sets after them all the bloodhounds of hell. Satan comes to us to-day, and he promises all luxuries, all emoluments if we will only serve him. Liar, down with thee to the pit! "The wages of sin is death." Oh! the young man of the text was wise when he uttered the resolution: "I will arise and go to my father."

In the time of Queen Mary, of England, a persecutor came to a Christian woman who had hidden in her house for the Lord's sake one of Christ's servants, and the persecutor said: "Where is that heretic?" The Christian woman said: "You open that trunk and you will see the heretic." The persecutor opened the trunk, and on the top of the linen of the trunk he saw a glass. He said: "There is no heretic here." "Ah!" she said, "You look in the glass and you will see the heretic!" As I take up the mirror of God's word to-day, I would that instead of seeing the prodigal of the text, we might see ourselves—our want, our wandering, our sin, our lost condition, so that we might be as wise as this young man was and say: "I will arise and go to my father."

The resolution of this text was formed in disgust at his present circumstances. If this young man had been by his employer set to culturing flowers, or training vines over an arbor, or keeping account of the pork market, or overseeing other laborers, he would not have thought of going home. If he had had his pockets full of money, if he had been able to say, "I have a thousand dollars now of my own; what's the use of my going back to my father's house? do you think I am going back to apologize to the old man? why he would put me on the limits; he would not have going on around the place such conduct as I have been engaged in; I won't go home; there is no reason why I should go home; I have plenty of money, plenty of pleasant surroundings, why should I go home?" Ah! it was his pauperism, it was his beggary. He had to go home.

Some men come and say to me: "Why do you talk about the ruined state of the human soul? why don't you speak about the progress of the nineteenth century, and talk of something more exhilarating?" It is for this reason; a man never wants the gospel until he realizes he is in a famine struck state. Suppose I should come to you in your home, and you are in good, robust health, and I should begin to talk about medicines, and about how much better this medicine is than that, and some other medicine than some other medicine, and talk about this physician and that physician. After a while you would get tired, and you would say: "I don't want to hear about medicines. Why do you talk to me of physicians? I never have a doctor." Suppose I come into your house and I find you severely sick, and I know the medicines that will cure you, and I meet your case. You say: "Bring on all that medicine, bring on that physician. I am terribly sick, and I want help." If I came to you, and you feel you are all right in body and all right in mind, and all right in soul, you have need of nothing; but suppose I persuaded you that the leprosy of sin is upon you, the worst of all sickness. Oh! then you say: "Bring me that balm of the gospel, bring me that divine medication, bring me Jesus Christ."

But, says someone in the audience: "How do you prove that we are in a ruined condition by sin?" Well, I can prove it in two ways, and you may have your choice. I can prove it either by the statements of men or by the statement of God. Which shall it be? You all say: "Let us have the statement of God." Well, he says in one place, 'the heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked." He says in another place: "what is man that he should be clean? and he which is born of woman, that he should be righteous?" He says in another place: "there is none that doeth good, no, not one." He says in another place: "as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned."

"Well," you say, "I am willing to acknowledge that, but why should I take the particular rescue that you propose?" This is the reason: "Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God." This is the reason: "There is one name given under heaven among men whereby they may be saved." Then there are a thousand voices here ready to say: "Well, I am ready to accept this help of the gospel: I would like to have this divine cure; how shall I go to work?" Let me say this is a mere whim, an undefined longing that amounts to nothing. You must have a stout, tremendous resolution like this young man of the text when he said: "I will arise and go to my father."

3 sermon

"Oh!" says some young man, "how do I know my father wants me? how do I know, if I go back, I would be received?" "Oh!" says some man, "you don't know how far I have wandered; you wouldn't talk that way to me if you knew all the iniquities I have committed." What is that flutter among the angels of God? It is news, it is news! Christ has found the lost.

Nor angels can their joy contain,
But kindled with new fire;
The sinner lost, is found, they sing,
And strike the sounding lyre.

When Napoleon talked of going into Italy, they said: "You can't get there; if you knew what the Alps were you wouldn't talk about it or think of it; you can't get your ammunition wagons over the Alps." Then Napoleon rose in his stirrups and waving his hand toward the mountains he said: "There shall be no Alps." That wonderful pass was laid out which has been the wonderment of all engineers. And you tell me there are such mountains of sin between your soul and God, there is no mercy. Then I see Christ waving his hand toward the mountains, and I hear him say, "I will come over the mountains of thy sin and the hills of thine iniquity." There shall be no Pyrenees, there shall be no Alps."

Again I notice that this resolution of the young man of the text was founded in sorrow at his misbehavior. It was not mere physical plight. It was grief that he had so maltreated his father. It is a sad thing after a father has done everything for a child to have that child be ungrateful.

How sharper than a serpent's tooth, it is,
To have a thankless child.

That is Shakespeare. "A foolish son is the heaviness of his mother." That is the Bible. Well, my friends, have not some of us been cruel prodigals? Have we not maltreated our Father? And such a father! So loving, so kind. If he had been a stranger, if he had forsaken us, if he had flagellated us, if he had pounded us and turned us out of doors on the commons, it would not have been so wonderful—our treatment of him; but he is a Father so loving, so kind, and yet how many of us for our wanderings have never apologized. We apologize for wrongs done to our fellows, but some of us perhaps have committed ten thousand times ten thousand wrongs against God and never apologized.

I remark still further that this resolution of the text was founded on a feeling of homesickness. I do not know how long this young man, how many months, how many years, he had been away from his father's house; but there is something about the reading of my text that makes me think he was homesick. Some of you know what that feeling is. Far away from home sometimes, surrounded by everything bright and pleasant—plenty of friends—you have said: "I would give the world to be home to-night." Well, this young man was homesick for his father's house. I have no doubt when he thought of his father's house he said: "Now, perhaps, father may not be living."

We read nothing in this story—this parable founded on everyday life—we read nothing about the mother. It says nothing about going home to her. I think she was dead. I think she had died of a broken heart at his wanderings, or perhaps he had gone into dissipation from the fact that he could not remember a loving and sympathetic mother. A man never gets over having lost his mother. Nothing said about her here. But he is homesick for his father's house. He thought he would just like to go and walk around the old place. He thought he would just like to go and see if things were as they used to be. Many a man after having been off a long while, has gone home and knocked at the door. He finds out his father is gone, mother is gone, and brothers and sisters are gone. I think this young man of the text said to himself: "Perhaps father may be dead." Still, he starts to find out. He is homesick. Are there any here to-day homesick for God, homesick for heaven?"

A sailor, after having been long on the sea, returned to his father's house, and his mother tried to persuade him not to go away again. She said: "Now you had better stay at home; don't go away, we don't want you to go. You will have it a great deal better here." But it made him angry. The night before he went again to sea, he heard his mother praying in the next room, and that made him more angry. He went far out to sea and a storm came up, and he was ordered to perilous duty, and he ran up the rattlines, and amid the shrouds of the ship he heard the voice that he had heard in the next room. He tried to whistle it off, he tried to rally his courage; but he could not silence that voice he had heard in the next room, and there in the storm and darkness he said: "Oh! Lord, what a wretch I have been, what a wretch I am. Help me just now, Lord God." And I thought in this assemblage to-day there may be some who may have the memory of a father's petition, or a mother's prayer pressing mightily upon the soul, and that this hour they may make the same resolution I find in my text, saying: "I will arise and go to my father."

A lad at Liverpool went out to bathe, went out into the sea, went out too far, got beyond his depth, and he floated far away. A ship bound for Dublin came along and took him on board. Sailors are generally very generous fellows, and one gave him a cap and another gave him a jacket, and another gave him shoes. A gentleman passing along on the beach at Liverpool found the lad's clothes and took them home, and the father was heart-broken, the mother was heart-broken at the loss of her child. They had heard nothing from him day after day, and they ordered the usual mourning for the sad event. But the lad took ship from Dublin and arrived in Liverpool the very day the garments arrived. He knocked at the door and the father was overjoyed, and the mother was overjoyed at the return of their lost son. O! my friends, have you waded out too deep? Have you waded down into sin? Have you waded from the shore? Will you come back? When you come back will you come in the rags of your sin, or will you come robed in the Saviour's righteousness? I believe the latter. Go home to your God to-day. He is waiting for you. Go home!

Several hundred friends of the prisoners are in town, and as they are frequent visitors of the saloons trouble is anticipated. MARCHED ON THE MINERS Successful Raid by Tennessee Soldiers.

A Negro Spy Shot Down in His Tracks by Command of Capt. Patterson.

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 22.—Two companies of the First regiment marched from Coal Creek to Briceville, a distance of five miles, and captured 140 miners who were holding a meeting to discuss the situation. The soldiers were under command of Capt. Patterson and the miners were taken by surprise. They were surrounded instantly and called upon to surrender.

When the miners were order arrest the soldiers went through every house in the village and captured every gun and pistol that could be found.

Among the arms taken were the United States rifles taken from the soldiers at Oliver Springs last Tuesday. Just before Briceville was reached Capt. Patterson found a negro whom he identified as a spy sneaking along under the brush that skirts the public road. He called on the negro to surrender, but the negro started on a run. The command was given to fire and 100 rifles were levelled at him. He was riddled with bullets, and left by the roadside. Miners arrested were taken to Coal Creek without further difficulty.

Warden Gammon expressed the opinion that the trouble was not yet over. Said he: "These men only want time to organize. They will assemble in these mountains, hold their night meetings, and decide on a concentrated movement against us again" Warden Gammon has been in charge of the convicts at the stockade here for more than a year, and should know whereof he speaks, but on the contrary, a majority of resident citizens say there will be no further trouble until the troops are withdrawn.

The body of Jake Witzen, the negro who was shot at Briceville yesterday, was brought into town this afternoon and sent to Clinton.

Searching parties have been scouring the mountainside for a radius of six or eight miles and have brought in several prisoners. An important arrest was made in the person of J. B. Simmons, who is known to be an insigator and bad man.

Duluth.

Duluth, Aug. 22.—The steamer Siske took a small cargo of wheat to Buffalo at 3 1-4c. Wheat in store 1,701,803 bushels; decrease 304,437 bushels.

Buffalo.

Buffalo, Aug. 22.—There are rumors of a strike of the grain shovlers prevalent here this morning, but they prove without foundation. Grain is moving more freely and vessels can get reasonable dispatches and coal freights are dead with rates nominally unchanged.

Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—Advices from Buffalo as to line agents and vessel men this morning indicated that the freight blockade there caused by the switchmen's strike was nearly at an end. Even the Erie, which was most seriously affected, is again in shape for business. Grain rates were steady at 2 1-4 cents for wheat to Buffalo. There was a good inquiry for boats.

Montegle Released.

Mackinaw, Aug. 22.—Steamer Montegle, stranded on Point Au Sable, was lightered and pulled off by wrecker Manistique early this morning.

The Mitchell Released.

Sand Beach, Aug. 22.—The steamer Samuel Mitchell repaired her wheel and got away last night.

Cleveland.

Cleveland, Aug. 22.—Offers of 3 cents for wheat from Duluth to Buffalo caused a little better feeling here and ore shippers, who have been holding off for 70c tonnage from Escanaba, paid 75c in a few cases.

There is nothing doing in Marquette or Ashland freights. Lake Superior coal cargoes are very scarce at 40 cents. Lake Michigan coal is equally scarce, but brokers hold that 60 cents is the rate to Milwaukee, as but one boat, the Golden age, has been chartered at 50 cents, and cargo was not only large, but also desirable on account of freedom from tow bills.

A Village Destroyed by Falling Ice.

London Advices Report Cholera in Germany But Not of the Asiatic Type.

London, Aug. 22.—A Lucerne dispatch to the Times says:

The heat has caused a fall of ice from the glacier in the valley of the Visp, which almost destroyed the village of Tasch, near Zermatt.

A torrent has destroyed portions of the Welge-Zermatt railway, and travelers are now transported by mules. There are various indications of the expansion of the upper snow fields by the heat. Climbers should be warned of extreme danger from avalanches.

The Standard's Paris correspondent says: "The heat snapped a rail at the Bourget station to-day, causing the telescoping of a train. The driver and stoker of the engine were crushed to death."

The Standard's Vienna correspondent says that the heat has caused numerous forest fires and has injured field crops, especially in Hungary, but that the vintage prospects are fine.

The Standard's Berlin correspondent says that since the hot spell set in numerous cases of cholera have occurred in various parts of Germany and several persons have died of the disease in Hamburg, but no cases of Asiatic cholera have been reported.

CHINESE SENSIBILITY.

They Do Not Feel as Much Pain as Caucasians.

"It seems to make no particular difference to a Chinese how long he remains in one position. He will write all day, like an automaton. If he is a handicraftsman he will stand in one place from dewy morn till dusky eve, working away at his weaving, his gold-beating, or whatever it may be, and do it every day, without variation in the monotony, and apparently no special consciousness that there is any monotony to be varied.

"In the same way Chinese school children are subjected to an amount of confinement, unrelieved by any recess or change of work, which would soon drive western pupils to the verge of insanity. The very infants in arms, instead of squirming and wriggling as our children begin to do as soon as they are born, lie as impassive as so many mud gods. And at a more advanced age, when western children would vie with the monkey in its wildest antics, Chinese children will often stand, sit or squat in the same posture for a great length of time.

"In the item of sleep, the Chinese establishes the same indifference betwen himself and the Occidental as in the directions already specified. Generally speaking, he is able to sleep anywhere. None of the trifling disturbances which drive us to despair annoy him. With a brick for a pillow, he can lie down on his bed of sticks, of mud bricks or rattan, and sleep the sleep of the just, with no reference to the rest of creation. He does not want his room darkened, nor does he require others to be still. The infant crying in the night may continue to cry, for all he cares, for it does not disturb him.

"In some regions the entire population seem to fall asleep, as by a common instinct (like that of the hibernating bear) during the first two hours of summer afternoons, and they do this with regularity, no matter where they may be. At two hours after noon the universe at such seasons is as still as at two hours after midnight. In the case of most working people, at least, and also in that of many others, position to sleep is of no sort of consequence. It would be easy to raise in China an army of 1,000,000 —nay, of 10,000,000—tested by competitive examination as to their capacity to go to sleep across three wheelbarrows, with head downward like a spider, their mouths wide open and a fly inside.

"The same freedom from tyranny of nerves is exhibited in the Chinese endurance of physical pain. Those who have any acquaintance with the operations in hospitals in China know how common or rather how almost universal it is for the patients to bear without flinching a degree of pain from which the stoutest of us would shrink in terror.

"It would be easy to expand this topic above into an essay, but we must pass it by, merely calling attention to a remark of George Eliot, in one of her letters: 'The highest calling and election,' she says—irritated, no doubt, by theological formulas, for which she had no taste—is to do without opium, and to bear pain with clear-eyed endurance.' If she is right there can be little doubt that most Chinese, at least, have made their calling and election sure."

SOUNDING JARS IN CHURCHES.

One of the most singular feaures of the older churches in England and western Europe is the presence in the walls of large numbers of jars. They are imbedded in the masonry, with the neck turned toward the interior of the church and the mouth opening into the audience room. For a long time the openings were supposed to be holes in the walls, but a closer examination, a number of years ago, on one or two of these old buildings disclosed the fact that the openings were the necks of jugs, and led to no little speculation as to why they had been placed there. All old churches—that is to say, churches erected from the eleventh to the seventeenth centuries—have them, and in some of the old French churches, nearly 200 having been counted in the cathedral of Angouleme, in France. The explanation of their presence is easy. They are placed in the walls with a view to bettering the acoustic properties of the building. The idea is as old as Vitruvius, who, in a work on the Roman theater, advises that earthenware jars be placed in the walls for the purpose of increasing the resonance of the building. In several Roman structures such jugs have been found, used in the way afterward adopted by the architects of the middle ages. As to the efficiency of the device, its employment is open to question. For increasing the acoustic properties of the rooms the jars are probably useless, but no one can certainly say that they are so until the experiment has been tried of constructing two rooms with jugs in the walls of one and the walls of the other solid. A test made under these conditions would determine the question which otherwise must remain unsettled.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A FEMALE STAGE DRIVER.

A peculiarly nervous little woman, with dark auburn hair and flashing black eyes, is often registered at the Grand Hotel in this city. She is Mrs. H. J. Langdon, of Lassen county, the woman stage driver of the Sierras; but she is more than a driver of stages, she is an owner. Her stage lines extend for several hundred miles throughout the mountains, and she owns scores of horses and vehicles, and carries the United States mail, a swell as hundreds of passengers.

Her husband died a few years ago and she took hold and managed and extended the business aforesaid. Mrs. Langdon has taken many mail contracts from the government and is well known at Washington, D. C., which city she often has occasion to visit in connection with her mail contracts. Recently she had some correspondence with Postmaster General Wanamaker in regard to his method of awarding contracts, in which she expressed herself in a manner to attract the attention of the entire country.

Mrs. Langdon is reported to be as good a judge of stock as any man in the stage business. She knows also the opportune moment when to grease a wagon, oil harness and generally to keep in touch with the stage business, so as to make it successful.

Her stage lines extend over some of the ruggedest roads in the Sierras, and again across plains, like those about Susanville. Plumas county has several of Mrs. Langdon's lines. She delivers mails and passengers promptly, and by reason of her skill in taking contracts and her ability in executing them has become noted for her pluck and enterprise. She is said to be an excellent whip and to be able to manipulate the lines of four or more horses about as easily as the famous Hank Monk used to do on the old Geiger grade.—San Francisco Examiner.

THEY ALL DO IT.

The Way a Woman Will Insist on Getting Off a Street Car.

"Hold up a bit, ma'am," said the conductor, warningly; "the car'll stop on t'other side of the street."

The woman gave him a scornful glance. She was tall and angular, and the tip of her nose uplifted perceptibly as she replied, says the Chicago Mail:

"You've enough to mind your own business," and then settled down upon the step of the Wentworth avenue box car. It was last night, but an electric light made the street as light as day.

"Don't do it, ma'am," he persisted. "'Tis my business to warn ye." Then he stretched forth his arm to stop her as the horses began to slacken, obedient to the pull of the bell.

The clubman joined his voice with that of the conductor.

Too late. Nimbly she sprang groundward, first turning her back upon the horses. In her sublime effort to teach conductor and spectators how much she did know about springing off moving cars she overleaped many feet, then sidled in a demi-curvette, caught upon her left heel, turned half way about, and measured her full length upon the cruel stones of the street.

"They all will do it—jump afore it's time to stop, and always backward," cried the conductor, half in despair and half in terror, as he jumped off and rushed to the assistance of the prostrate female.

Disdaining assistance, she slowly regained an erect attitude, and then poured out a torrent of wrath.

"You sorry wretch!" she cried, pointing her long and bony finger at the innocent but trembling official. "You mean, contemptible wretch! Don't tell me you didn't do it, for I saw you signal the driver to touch up them horses just before I jumped. You pizen rascal! You're jest groanin' now because you didn't break my leg, or neck or somethin'." And much more of the same sort poured from her thin lips. She insisted upon having his number, and called for names of bystanders, all of whom promptly responded by giving her names their mothers wouldn't know them by and addresses that are not in the directory.

When the car had started and the ruffled spirit of the conductor had been somewhat smoothed by the free expressions of sympathy from sundry passengers, the man of nickels said to the clubman:

"I'm not saying all women do it, because I know some typewriter girls and women clerks that can jump off and on as nimble as you or me, or any other man. But they're exceptions. It amounts to more than half our business to watch 'em. I tell you, it's this here way about a woman. She allers points her face toward her home. If it's in the direction of the driver, then she's all right, but if the car has gone ten foot beyond the side of the street she walks on to get home, she'll spring off backward, and no amount of warnin' or experience'll teach her any better.

"What knocks me out is why they can't wait for a stop. It's only a few feet at the best, and they ain't in a hurry, for I've seen 'em stand and gossip as long as the car was in sight, after rushin' like mad to jump off while it was movin'.

"They never charge up anything to their own account. Not they. It's always the conductor that's tripped 'em with his foot, or pushed 'em off, or started up the horses. Mebbe it's because they're so used to being waited on an' served by men that they lose their common sense when any of us is around. It jest keeps me miserable all the time watchin' 'em, an' blessed if I don't dream o' nights of their fallin' off an' breaking of their necks. Their gory corpses haunt me in my dreams, an' if the thing goes on much longer I'll go stark, ravin' crazy. Some one oughter invent a patent machine for holdin' them tight in their seats till the cars stop dead still. Ten to one that there blessed woman'll get me called to the office and lose half a day which I won't get paid for. There'd oughter be a school for teachin' 'em how to get on an' off, and a law passed to make every one on 'em attend it. Blessed, though, if I don't believe there's lots of 'em that wouldn't graduate in a thousand years."

THE HOME OF DOLL-MAKING.

Dolldom is in the heart of Germany; in the bosom of the mountains, Thuringian forest; in Sonneburg—a poor, dreary, little old town. This is where the doll-makers toil from infancy to old age; this is where 25,000,000 dozen doll babies are born every year. Sonneburg has 12,000 inhabitants and they are all in the doll business. Those who do not sell dolls, make them; those who do neither are in the cradle. Even the dogs, the goats and the cows haul cartloads of dressed or undressed dolls through the streets. Every man, woman and child you meet has a basket on his head or a hamper on his back with just as many sham babies in it as there is room for.

The little children going to and from school stop at the factory to deliver or receive work. If you go to a shoe shop the proprietor will lay aside the tiny gaiters he is working on to serve you. Peep into a barber shop and there sits the artist working on a doll's peruke. The village butcher cherishes a box of suet to sell to the doll's gluemaker; the tailor and seamstress keep a ragbag that the doll's dressmaker is certain to come for; the upholsterer is not above making mattresses for the much-loved pets, who shut their sleepless eyes, and the glovier, the milliner and even the struggling little jeweler have wares for dolly in his shop window.

There is scarcely a house in the whole palce that isn't a depot for dolls. They stare at the passer-by from the street windows, the garret windows and all the windows that intervene; they lie about on kitchen tables, they fill the chairs, they crowd the babies out of their wooden cradles and actually force the children to eat their meals on the doorstep. Even the fathers have to go out to get rested.—Correspondence New York World.
